Good evening Richard,

Thank you for your update.

I have received communication from the Victims of Crime Tribunal and I will submit to them all the requested paperwork in the near future. I hope that they are able to assist you during your recovery.

I am not quite sure how the Victims of Crime financial assistance works, however your GP can help you with further psychology appointments should you need them.

In regards to the investigation, we did hope that the offenders had paid by bank card for their drinks at the Dancing Dog, however the staff are correct in telling you that they actually paid cash, so that avenue of enquiry is now not possible.

The images of the offenders have been circulated to Victoria Police members, so I will let you know if I receive any information back in regards to identity.

Best regards,

Grace Buckley | First Constable 40383 | Footscray Police Station

Hi Grace.

Apologies if this email seems menial in anyway or takes you away from more pressing things.

I am writing tonight for a couple of reasons.

The first is I was just following up on the investigation, although I know you said you would notify me.

I hear from the Dancing Dog that the offenders were tried to be traced by any transaction with the banks but that was not successful. Its a shame they used cash then.

I wanted to just put on the record I am still finding it difficult, and note the following injuries which I have had to have lots of medical appointments for and ongoing treatment:

The guy broke my nose, I have scarring or a cyst in my upper lip where it has healed incorrectly, (I am seeing a plastic surgeon tomorrow to maybe get it cut out), my hand has not healed well from the break and I fear my little finger will be fixed where it is and never fully heal.

I just wanted to make that information explicit to you. I have also had to see a chir operator and get an MRI scan on my shoulder which has also been injured (I received medication for it but need to follow up again with my GP): I am not sure whether this was a result of my own punch or when I fell and was kicked on the ground. I only noticed it after the undone painkillers had worn off from the management of pain in my hand.

My PhD work has suffered immensely and I have been at the hospital twice today for a re-cast and hand therapy which I am doing to try and get my hand back to health.

I really do hope a) that the guy I punched was not seriously injured, however, I do hope you catch them.

I think I got one call for assistance but not much was done I have not had face to face contact with anyone apart from the lawyer and the police on the night.

Victims of crime have paid for two (2) psychology sessions but I am afraid it may take many more than that to come to terms with what has happened.

I have an appointment with my psychologist tomorrow, and also the plastic surgery people and I have been told by my lawyer to keep all receipts but it is difficult to pay up front because I am on a disability pension. (I intermittently suffer from schizophrenia).

Any information is appreciated, and I appreciate the time you are taking to read my email and concerns.

I will wait patiently to hear back from you.

Sincerely,

Richard.

Good afternoon Rich,

Sorry to hear that you have been struggling since the assault. I did submit referrals to a support agency to contact you. Did you have any contact from a support service?

I understand from your email that you are in contact with Victims of Crime, so I am presuming that this has either come the referral I put in or the Victims Of Crime guide book that I mailed you.

In answer to your queries:

- Please find attached your statement as taken by Senior Constable LITTLE on the evening of the incident.
- I have requested the medical reports from the hospital.
- The investigation to identify the offenders is still underway. As previously mentioned, I will update you with any progression.

Best regards,

Hi Constable Grace.

I'm sorry to bother you and I appreciate you are busy.

I am writing for a few reasons.

Firstly is to say I am finding it difficult since the assault.

I am angry, hurting, and have not been going out. I am afraid of loud spaces and people and have not gone back to the dancing Dog, somewhere I had drank for six years.

I wanted to check with you that you received the hospital report from the initial hospital visit?

I have not been able to do my PhD work because my hand has been in plaster and I cannot type, and concentrating had been difficult because I was concussed.

I also have an injured shoulder along with the broken hand, and the guy also broke my nose when he head butted me - all of which was not detailed in the original medical report.

Apart from on the night, I have been back to the hospital twice for check ups X-rays and get my hand tended to.

The hospital said they should have x-rayed my nose and head on the night but they didn't.

The doctor told me if I had a brain bleed, that week passing since I went back was my test to live - and I did. It did not seem like they had followed proper procedure.

Life is difficult since the assault. I am still in a cast and find it hard to type or concentrate.

I have filed a case with victims of crime.

I am hoping you can send me a copy of my statement by email because my lawyer from victims of crime wanted me to contact you so I could send it onto him.

Otherwise you can email him directly at sinan@daniellawyers.com.au<<mailto:sinan@daniellawyers.com.au>>

I'm sorry to bother you with menial tasks but I wanted to let you know how I am going and also the outcome(s) if any of the investigation.

Please call when you have time.

Kind regards,

Richard
