Subject: Creative Victoria funding outcome (ref APP/2020-4831, Rich McLean)

Dear Rich

Thank you for your recent application to VicArts Grants seeking support for Explicating my life's visual journey in a multimedia way, autoethnography. I regret to advise that the application was not successful.

The information and support materials you provided with your application were considered during the assessment process. However, due to the highly competitive nature of the round and a significant number of applications we received more high-quality applications than we were able to support.

We recognise that this is a period of great uncertainty across the creative, and broader community. The Victorian Government has recently announced funding that will enable Creative Victoria to launch a suite of grants programs that will open for applications January 2021. More information about programs for 2021 will be available on the Creative Victoria website early in the new year. If you don't already, I encourage you to subscribe to our eNews or follow us on social media to hear about new support opportunities, from Creative Victoria and beyond, as they arise.

Creative Victoria would like to draw your attention to the resources and support offered by the following organisations, that may be useful at this time:

* The Arts Wellbeing Collective - an initiative overseen by Arts Centre Melbourne that provides resources and support to promote positive mental health and wellbeing in the performing arts. The Collective also offers the Support Act Wellbeing Helpline, a free, confidential phone counselling service, available 24/7 for anyone who works in the performing arts, music, or other creative industries.

* Support Act - a charity delivering crisis relief services to artists, crew and music workers as a result of ill health, injury, a mental health problem, or some other crisis that impacts on their ability to work in music. Support Act partners with the Arts Wellbeing Collective to run the Support Act Wellbeing Helpline and also runs the Support Act First Nations Dedicated Support Line, a free and confidential service specifically catered to First Nations music and arts workers who are concerned about any aspect of their mental health and wellbeing. Available 24/7, 365 days per year.

Please note, Creative Victoria staff are unable to give application feedback for this round of the program at this time. However, if you would like to apply for funding through one of our 2021 programs when they are launched, staff will be available to support you in your application and can provide feedback on previous applications at that time. Staff contacts for each program will be listed on the website once programs are announced.

Creative Victoria staff are continuing to work remotely. Over the holiday period, staff will have limited capacity to respond to enquiries so you may experience a delay in our responses. If you need to get in touch, please email artsdevelopment@creative.vic.gov.au and a staff member will get back to you as soon as practicable.

Yours sincerely

Andrew Abbott
