Thank you for contacting the Office of the Australian Information Commissioner

Thank you for contacting the Office of the Australian Information Commissioner (OAIC). The OAIC receives a large quantity of correspondence each day and we will be in contact as soon as we are able.

If you have contacted us to make a privacy complaint

- We will first assess your correspondence and consider if we are able to assist you. If we are unable to assist, or require further information, we will contact you. Due to the volume of correspondence we receive, this may take some time.
- Generally, for us to consider a privacy complaint you first need to have complained to the respondent. If you are waiting to hear from us about a privacy complaint, we recommend that you continue to pursue resolution of the complaint with the respondent organisation or agency.
- You may also be able to lodge your complaint with a recognised External Dispute Resolution (EDR) Scheme. A list of recognised EDR schemes is available on the OAIC's website. These EDR schemes cover financial services (including credit reports), telecommunications, and energy and water providers.

Unfortunately, we are not able to allocate all complaints to a case officer immediately. We will contact you as soon as we can.

Once a complaint is allocated, a staff member will make contact to discuss the next steps. Please note the OAIC aims to resolve complaints through discussion, negotiation and conciliation, and a complaint will likely be referred to the respondent for it to contact you directly to try and resolve the matter.

Please let us know if your contact details change, your complaint has been resolved, or if other circumstances change.

You can write to us or call on our Enquiries Line on 1300 363 992 (local call cost, but calls from mobile and pay phones may incur higher charges). If you do, it will help us if you quote your reference number which is found at the top of this correspondence.

We will arrange for letters and telephone calls to be translated if you would like to communicate with us in a language other than English. You can also let us know if you need other assistance, including documents in other formats or larger fonts.

Information about how we handle privacy complaints is available on our website, www.oaic.gov.au.

Yours sincerely

Office of the Australian Information Commissioner
