supplementary PRODUCT DISCLOSURE STATEMENT

The issuer of this Supplementary Product Disclosure Statement (SPDS) is Health Super Pty Ltd ABN 97 084 162 489, RSE Licence No L0000482, AFS Licence No 246492 (Health Super) as trustee of the Health Super Fund (Fund Reg No. R1004113, ABN 88 293 440 675). This SPDS is supplementary to the Health Super Fund (Fund) combined Product Disclosure Statement & Financial Services Guide for Accumulation Members, dated 1 January 2007 (PDS) and must be read in conjunction with it.

This SPDS contains information about:

- recent government reforms to superannuation and taxation legislation effective mainly from 1 July 2007 (Superannuation & Taxation Reforms);
- changes to the asset fee applicable to this product (Asset Fee Change);
- the charging of fees in relation to Family law matters (Family law fee); and
- anti-money laundering and counter-terrorism financing changes (AML/CTF Reforms).

This SPDS also contains important information about the insurance benefits available from the Fund from 1 August 2007. Changes have been made to the insurance arrangements in the Fund as a result of an extensive review of the insurance benefits available to members in the Fund including considering:

- The range of insurance options available;
- The adequacy of insurance cover amounts (in light of industry research which indicates that most superannuants are not sufficiently prepared for life changing events such as disablement); and
- Feedback from members through a random survey conducted in December 2006.

The information in this SPDS is additional to and should be read in conjunction with information in the PDS about:

- Who can contribute to super? (page 7 of the PDS)
- What type of contributions can be added to your account? (page 8 of the PDS)
- Rolling over to another fund (page 9 of the PDS)
- How is your super taxed? (page 11 of the PDS)
- Fees and other costs (pages 13-15 of the PDS)

The information about insurance contained in this SPDS wholly replaces the information about insurance on pages 23-32 of the PDS and is effective from 1 August 2007.

For an explanation of some of the terms used in this SPDS, refer to the Glossary of Terms on page 41 of the PDS.

Note: The information in this SPDS is of a general nature. It contains a summary of the key rules that may impact you based on our understanding of the relevant laws at the date of preparation of this SPDS. However, these rules are complex and their impact on you depends on your personal circumstances. The information in this SPDS does not take into account your individual objectives, financial situation or needs. For these reasons, you should consider the appropriateness of this product having regard to your individual objectives, financial situation or needs. Health Super recommends that you seek advice from a financial services licensee or an authorised representative of a financial services licensee before investing or making any financial decisions in relation to this product.

Information contained in this SPDS or the PDS that is not materially adverse will, if it changes, be available to you on our website at www.healthsuper.com.au or in hard copy free of charge upon request by contacting Health Super on 1800 331 719. Also, you may request further information by contacting us at the address on the back cover of this SPDS or telephoning 1800 331 719. You can also go online to www.healthsuper.com.au. Health Super is obliged to give you further information which is generally available to the public or which might reasonably influence your decision whether to acquire or hold this product. Health Super will provide you with this further information free of charge.

government reforms

On 9 May 2006 the Federal Treasurer announced changes to the superannuation and taxation rules with effect, mainly, from 1 July 2007. These Government reforms are known as the “Simpler Super” or “Better Super” reforms.

These changes recently became law and have implications for the acceptance of contributions and payment of benefits by superannuation funds and taxation.

A summary of the changes is provided below. As these rules are complex and affect individuals differently (depending on their personal circumstances), we recommend you seek appropriately qualified advice about how they impact you. The Trustee will do whatever is necessary to ensure compliance with relevant taxation and superannuation law (including refunding or adjusting contributions or benefits as required or appropriate).

changes to contribution rules (from 1 July 2007)

All employer contributions and personal after tax contributions by eligible self-employed persons will be tax deductible (up to age 75) provided the criteria for deductibility is met. Age based deduction limits will no longer apply to these contributions and will be replaced by new limits (described below).

Contributions will be classified as “concessional” or “non-concessional”. Concessional contributions include deductible employer and self-employed contributions. Non-concessional contributions include member (after tax) contributions.

The concessional tax rate of 15% will apply to concessional contributions up to $50,000 per person per year for the 2007/2008 financial year (subject to indexation in future years). Transitional arrangements will apply, from 2007 to 2012, for those aged 50 or over at any time during this period allowing concessional contributions of up to $100,000 per person per year. Concessional contributions in excess of these limits will incur additional tax of 31.5% payable directly by the individual member (this amount may be released from a superannuation fund upon presentation of a release authority issued by the Australian Tax Office). Any excess concessional contributions will also count towards the amount of a member’s non-concessional contributions (see below).

Non-concessional contributions will be limited to $150,000 per person per annum (for the 2007/2008 financial year). People under age 65 can bring forward 2 years of future entitlements averaged over a three year period, giving them a cap of $450,000 over a three year period. Once a person turns age 65 they will be able to make non-concessional contributions of up to $150,000 in each financial year provided they have worked at least 40 hours during a continuous 30 day period (“work test”) during the relevant year. The $150,000 cap will be indexed in future years so it is always three times the cap on concessional contributions. Non-concessional contributions in excess of these limits will incur tax at the top marginal tax rate (plus medicare levy) payable directly by the individual (this amount must be released from a superannuation fund upon presentation of a release authority issued by the Australian Tax Office).

Note: Spouse contributions will be included in the receiving spouse’s cap. Government co-contributions, personal contributions made from certain proceeds from the disposal of qualifying small business assets up to a lifetime limit of $1 million (indexed) and personal contributions from proceeds from certain payments for personal injury resulting in permanent disablement made within 90 days of receiving the payment will not count towards the non-concessional contributions cap.

Non-mandated employer contributions will be able to be made to a superannuation fund on your behalf between age 70 to 74 (inclusive) provided you satisfy the work test (up to 30 June 2007, only mandated employer contributions could be made for members in this age group).

Superannuation funds cannot accept non-concessional contributions in excess of a member’s non-concessional contributions cap, or, if the fund does not hold a member’s tax file number (TFN) any member contributions for the member. Contributions made to a fund in contravention of these rules (and any other contribution rules) must be refunded by the trustee in certain circumstances. A refund may be adjusted for any investment fluctuations, reasonable costs and insurance premiums for cover provided prior to the refund.

changes to the taxation of benefits (from 1 July 2007)

Reasonable benefit limits (RBLs) will be abolished (prior to 1 July 2007, the purpose of RBLs was to place a maximum on the amount of concessional taxed superannuation benefits you could receive).

Tax will be removed from superannuation benefits if paid from a taxed source to a member aged 60 or more (whether paid as a lump sum or pension).

While tax will still be payable on superannuation benefits paid to members aged under 60, this will occur on a simplified basis. Lump sum payments from a taxed source will consist of only two components.

A tax-free component made up of:

- any tax-free components as at 30 June 2007 such as the pre-July 83 component, CGT exempt component, post-June 1994 invalidity component and concessional component (called the “crystallised segment”), plus non-concessional contributions made from 1 July 2007 (called the “contributions segment”).
- A taxable component made up of the total superannuation benefit, less any tax-free component. The taxable component will be taxed as follows:

preservation age - 59	0% up to $140,000 15% over $140,000
below preservation age	20%

*Rates do not include Medicare levy

This is known as the ‘low rate threshold’ and will be indexed in increments of $5,000.

Tax at the highest marginal tax rate (plus Medicare levy) will apply to the taxable component if the Fund does not hold a member’s TFN.

Any payment of superannuation benefits must be withdrawn from the tax-free and taxable components in proportion. It will no longer be possible to nominate the component from which benefits are withdrawn.

All lump sum Death benefit payments made to a dependant will be tax-free. Death benefit payments to non-dependants will have to be made as a lump sum. Lump sum payments to non-dependants (irrespective of their age) will be taxed at up to 15% (provided they do not include any untaxed elements).

Note: It is important to note that a dependant for taxation purposes is different from a dependant for other superannuation purposes (see page 10 of the PDS for more information). A non-dependant for taxation purposes includes an adult child aged 18 or more (unless financially dependant or an interdependant). Where a Death benefit is received by the legal personal representative of a deceased estate, tax is determined according to who is intended to benefit from the estate.

changes for eligible self-employed persons (from 1 July 2007)

The Government co-contribution scheme will be extended to include the self-employed, provided they satisfy eligibility criteria for the co-contribution. To be eligible, a self-employed person must be under age 71 at the end of the income year and:

- earn 10% or more of their total income (assessable income plus reportable fringe benefits) for that year from running a business, eligible employment, or a combination of both - note that for this definition, income is not reduced by deductions that result from running a business; and
- earn below $58,000 in that income year - this includes assessable income plus reportable fringe benefits less tax deductions for running a business (not including employee deductions).

Self-employed people will be able to claim a full tax deduction for contributions to a superannuation fund for themselves while under age 75. To be eligible, less than 10% of the person's total income (assessable income plus reportable fringe benefits) must be derived from employment as an employee.

A notice of a self-employed person's intention to claim a tax deduction must be submitted to the Fund by the earlier of:

- the time of lodgement of the person's tax return, or
- the end of the financial year following the year the contribution was made (Deduction Notice).

A Deduction Notice must be acknowledged by the Trustee. A trustee can refuse to acknowledge a Deduction Notice in certain circumstances (for example, a member's account contains insufficient money to meet the contributions tax payable on the deductible contributions).

Note: these rules only apply from 1 July 2007. Any tax deduction claim for personal contributions made prior to 1 July 2007 will need to be made in accordance with rules applicable prior to 1 July 2007.

changes to TFN rules (from 1 July 2007)

If a fund does not hold your TFN:

- by the end of the year in which contributions are received, your concessional contributions (called no-TFN contributions) will be taxed at the highest marginal tax rate (plus Medicare levy); and
- the fund may not be able to accept member contributions from you.

A fund may (but is not obliged to) recover any additional tax paid by it in respect of your no-TFN contributions if the fund is subsequently provided with your TFN (within 3 years after the year in which the contributions were made to the fund). The Trustee will make reasonable endeavours to recover such tax but does not guarantee it will do so in the event that a member has left the Fund prior to receiving the member's TFN.

Health Super's policy is that at the time you exit the Fund, if you have not provided your TFN, tax at the highest marginal rate plus Medicare levy will be deducted from your account in respect of your no-TFN contributions. The Fund will not refund the additional tax charged to your account if you provide your TFN after you exit. Therefore it is important that you ensure that we do have your TFN.

Stricter requirements will apply to employers to provide TFNs to a fund in respect of its employees (failure to meet these requirements may lead to imposition of a penalty on an employer).

changes to the payment of benefits (from 1 July 2007)

A standard form, and standard proof of identity requirements, will be introduced when transferring benefits between superannuation funds. Upon receipt of all necessary information, superannuation funds will have a maximum of 30 days to transfer benefits (instead of the current 90 days).

Additional information may be required in the case of a request to transfer benefits to a self managed superannuation fund.

other changes

Changes are also being made to the standards that govern the payment of pensions by superannuation funds (new simplified standards will apply) and the Government's Assets Test for the Age Pension and other social security purposes (changes to the assets test will apply from 20 September 2007). More information about changes relevant to pensions is contained in a Product Disclosure Statement relating to its account based pension product, available on request by contacting Health Super.

Special rules also apply to the treatment of employer eligible termination payments (payable directly by an employer), certain disablement amounts on settlement of a disability claim (outside of superannuation), proceeds from the sale of a small business and superannuation sourced from a foreign superannuation fund. If you are going to receive any of these amounts or are considering payment of them into superannuation, we recommend you obtain appropriately qualified financial advice.

From 1 July 2007, the payment of employer eligible termination payments to superannuation funds can only be made in limited circumstances. This will apply to people with entitlements on termination of employment specified in existing employment contracts as at 9 May 2006, provided that payments are made prior to 1 July 2012. If you think you may be affected, we recommend you seek appropriately qualified financial advice.

further information

As these changes may have a significant impact on you and your retirement planning (depending on your personal circumstances), we recommend you consult an appropriately licensed or authorised financial adviser. Further information is available from www.ato.gov.au/bettersuper or by contacting the Australian Tax Office's Superannuation Hotline on 1800 012 238 between 9.00 am and 5.00 pm, Monday to Friday.

Asset Fee change

The Trustee may charge an Asset Fee of up to 0.10% p.a., which is deducted from the Fund before the calculation of investment returns for each Accumulation Member Investment Option. The Asset Fee was not charged for the 2003/04, 2004/05 and 2005/06 years. However the Trustee charged an Asset Fee of 0.10% for the 2006/07 financial year and allocated the proceeds to the Administration Reserve Account. The Administration Reserve Account is used as a cost recovery measure where the Account Keeping Fees are insufficient in any one year to administer the Fund and is also used to fund extraordinary expenses.

The changes to the PDS, regarding the Asset Fee change are outlined below.

On page 6 of the PDS, footnote 3 is deleted and replaced with the following new footnote:

"3. The Asset Fee is charged for cost recovery purposes and to fund any extraordinary expenses. For further information see pages 13 and 14 of the PDS."

On page 13 of the PDS, footnote 3 is deleted and replaced with the following new footnote:

"3. The Asset Fee was not charged for the 2003/04, 2004/05 and 2005/06 financial years but an amount of 0.10% was charged for the 2006/07 financial year. See page 14 of the PDS for further information regarding circumstances where the Asset Fee is charged."

On page 14 of the PDS, in the example of annual fees and costs for a Balanced Member Investment Choice option delete footnote 2 and replace with the following new footnote 2:

"2. The Asset Fee may be charged for cost recovery purposes when the Account Keeping Fee is insufficient to administer the Fund or to fund extraordinary expenses. It was not charged for the 2003/04, 2004/05 and 2005/06 financial years but an amount of 0.10% was charged for the 2006/07 financial year."

On page 14 of the PDS, paragraph 2 under the heading "additional explanation of fees and costs" is deleted and replaced with the following new paragraph 2:

"2. The Trustee may charge an Asset Fee of up to 0.10% p.a., which is deducted from the Fund before the calculation of investment returns for each Accumulation Member Investment Choice option. The Asset Fee was not charged for the 2003/04, 2004/05 and 2005/06 financial years, however an amount of 0.10% was charged for the 2006/07 financial year.

The Asset Fee was charged for the 2006/07 financial year at 0.10% p.a. In future years the Asset Fee of up to 0.10% p.a. may be charged and allocated to the Administration Reserve Account.

The Administration Reserve Account was established in June 2006 and is used as a cost recovery measure where the Account Keeping Fees are insufficient in any one year to administer the Fund. The Administration Reserve Account is also used to fund extraordinary Fund expenses. The charging of the Asset Fee means that the amount allocated to a member's account in any one year will be the investment returns during the period that the member's money is invested in a particular Member Investment Choice option, after deduction of Investment Managers' Fees and the Asset Fee.

The Asset Fee applies to accumulation balances only."

Family Law fee

Under the heading "other fees" delete the second paragraph and replace with the following new paragraph:

"There may be fees incurred in accordance with relevant Family law and superannuation legislation. Health Super charges a $100 (no GST) fee for responding to requests for information with respect to a family law matter from a member of the Fund. This fee is $110 (incl. GST) where a request for information is from a non-member spouse.

A fee of $100 (no-GST) is charged and paid equally by the two parties to effect a superannuation account split or implement a flag. Where applicable, these fees are deducted from a member's account or paid directly by the member or non-member spouse to Health Super."

anti-money laundering & counter-terrorism financing reforms

As a result of separate Government reforms designed to counteract money laundering and terrorism financing, you may be required to provide proof of identity or meet other requirements as determined by the Trustee from time to time prior to being able to access your benefits in cash (called "customer identification" requirements). These requirements will apply from 12 December 2007. You will be notified of any additional information that may be required from you in order for a benefit payment to be made, where applicable.

The AML/CTF reforms also require the Trustee to report suspicious transactions to the Australian Transaction Reports and Analysis Centre (AUSTRAC), a government agency responsible for anti-money laundering and counter-terrorism financing. This may involve the disclosure of a member's personal information by the Trustee to AUSTRAC.

about INSURANCE

Insurance is a very important part of your financial planning as it helps provide you and your family with financial security if something unexpected were to happen to you.

The following insurance information takes effect from 1 August 2007. If you join the Fund prior to this date you should read pages 23-32 of the PDS dated 1 January 2007. If you are eligible, some changes to the insurance offering in the Fund from 1 August 2007 and detailed in the following section will apply automatically, such as the increase in Default level of cover of Death and TPD to 2 units of cover. The additional insurance options are new options available to all eligible members from 1 August 2007 on application.

Any person joining the Fund on or after 1 August 2007 should refer to the following sections in respect of their insurance arrangements in the Fund.

who provides the insurance?

The insurer provider is American International Assurance Company (Australia) Ltd ABN 79 004 837 861, AFSL No. 230043 trading as AIG Life (the 'Insurer' or 'AIG Life'). The insurance cover is provided under policies issued to Health Super by the Insurer. Health Super receives a 1% discount of the total annual premiums that it pays to the Insurer if the premiums are paid on time. This amount forms part of the assets of the Fund for the purposes of allocating investment returns to members and is in this way retained in the Fund for the benefit of members. The Insurer may also contribute to the cost of preparing and distributing documentation to members with respect to the insurance arrangements in the Fund.

Insurance benefits are underwritten by the Insurer in accordance with a Group Life Policy (Policy) between Health Super and the Insurer. Health Super reserves the right to replace the Policy and to alter the terms and conditions of the Policy, including the cover and the premiums. If you have any questions about insurance, please call Health Super on 1800 331 719. Copies of the Policy are available on request.

types of insurance cover

Health Super offers a range of insurance cover options to suit your needs. These options are:

type of cover	when the insured benefit is paid
death only	An insured benefit is paid in the event of your death. If you become terminally ill your insured Death benefit may be paid earlier. Cover is subject to a maximum cover of $5,000,000. Automatic acceptance limits also apply.
death and total and permanent disablement (TPD)	An insured benefit is paid in the event of your Death or if you become Totally and Permanently Disabled. The cover is subject to a maximum cover of $5,000,000 for Death and $2,000,000 for TPD. Automatic acceptance limits also apply.
income protection	A monthly insured benefit may be paid if you are Totally Disabled or Partially Disabled due to sickness or injury for longer than the 90 day waiting period (30 and 60 day waiting periods are available on application). This is subject to a maximum of 85% of your Pre-Disability Income (see page 16) or your monthly benefit, whichever is the lower. The maximum monthly benefit available is $20,000 per month.

Note: This table explains when the insured benefit will be paid to Health Super under the Policy. Under superannuation law, you must also satisfy a condition of release and the terms of the Trust Deed must permit payment, before Health Super can pay a benefit to you (see page 9 of the PDS).

automatic acceptance limits

When you join the Health Super Fund as a result of commencing work with a Registered Health Super Employer, you may be automatically insured if you die or become Totally and Permanently or Temporarily Disabled (called "Default Cover"). See pages 17 and 18 for more information.

Eligible members will have their insurance cover accepted automatically up to a specified limit without having to provide any health evidence. This is known as the Automatic Acceptance Limits (AALs).

age	death units (default cover)*	TPD units	IP units	total cost per week
15-64	2	2	2	$3.30
65-69	2	0	0	$1.24

*Members aged over 70 do not have any insurance cover in the Fund. Default Cover does not apply to spouse members or any other members who are not eligible for Default Cover. The cost of Income Protection cover shown in the total cost per week of default cover is based on the 90 day waiting period.

You may opt-out of some or all of your Default insurance cover at any time by completing the 'insurance reduction/cancellation' form in the PDS on page 57.

The dollar amount of default Death only or Death and TPD cover that two units provides will depend on your age and reduces the older you become. To see how much you could be insured for refer to the table on pages 12-13.

The dollar amount of default Income Protection cover that 2 units provides is $1,000 per month. This benefit can be paid after 90 days (or 30 or 60 days, if you apply for a shorter waiting period and it is granted to you) for up to 2 years (refer to page 14 for more information).

Please note: The AALs are subject to change. Members who require cover that exceed the AALs will have to provide satisfactory medical evidence before they are covered for the extra amount. The AALs are not available for members with a Health Super Spouse account. Members who require Income Protection cover with a shorter waiting period (not the default 90 day waiting period) will also have to provide satisfactory medical evidence before their selected waiting period applies.

cover greater than the automatic acceptance limits

If you would like additional units of insurance cover over and above the Default, you can apply by completing the 'insurance application' form and 'confidential personal statement' on pages 51 - 56 of the PDS. Any application for additional cover is subject to you having a minimum account balance of at least $1,000.

Depending upon your age, health and medical history and the amount of insurance cover sought, you may need to provide additional information or undergo medical examinations or tests in order for the Insurer to assess your application for additional insurance cover. When you apply for, change or renew insurance cover you have a legal duty of disclosure, which means you need to disclose anything that may influence the Insurer's decision to insure you, including on what terms they insure you.

For example, if you need to disclose anything (such as a pre-existing condition) that might:

- Increase the risk to be underwritten by the Insurer; and
- Increase the cost of covering you under the insurance policy.

The Insurer will generally pay for the cost of any medical examination or test that it requests. However, the Insurer will not pay for any other costs incurred for travelling to and from an appointment or for non-attendance at an arranged appointment.

Once your application has been accepted by the Insurer, Health Super will confirm in writing the amount of cover the Insurer has agreed to provide. The Insurer may accept an application for cover or an increase in cover or different cover subject to premium loadings and non-standard terms. You will be notified in writing if this is the case.

While your application is being assessed you will be eligible for Accidental Death and TPD cover. Refer to page 21 for further information.

additional insurance options

death and TPD cover – unitised cover versus fixed cover

When you join the Health Super Fund as a result of commencing work with a Registered Health Super Employer, you are provided with Default unitised cover (see Automatic Acceptance Limits). Unitised cover is based on flat premium amount per unit of cover. The benefit amount decreases as your age increases but the amount you pay (premium) remains the same.

Fixed cover does not change as you get older, however, the premium you pay will increase on 1 July each year. Fixed cover is available in multiples of $1,000. The premium rates applicable to fixed cover are on pages 19-20.

Members can switch between unitised and fixed cover at any time. Combinations of unitised and fixed cover are not available.

If you currently have unitised cover and wish to switch to fixed cover, you will be allocated a sufficient amount of fixed cover, rounded up to the next $1,000, to replace the number of units held. The maximum available cover is $5 million for Death cover and $2 million for TPD cover.

If you have fixed cover and wish to switch to unitised cover, you will be allocated a sufficient number of units for your age, rounded to the nearest unit, to replace the fixed cover you held.

If you would like to apply for fixed Death only or Death and TPD cover which does not reduce as you get older, you can apply for it by completing the 'insurance options application' form on page 27. Any application for additional cover is subject to having a minimum account balance of at least $1,000.

Fixed Death only or Death and TPD cover is subject to providing satisfactory evidence to the Insurer.

Note: If you convert to fixed cover, Life Events Top-Up will not be available.

Life Events Top-Up cover

If you are eligible for Death and TPD insurance cover, you have the option to obtain additional insurance cover for Death and TPD upon the occurrence of certain life events. The amount of additional cover is subject to certain limits depending on the nature of the life event.

Life Events Top-Up Cover provides you with increases in Death only or Death and TPD cover (via the additional allocation of units of cover) for the following life events provided you satisfy the evidence requirements:

life event	additional units	evidence required*
marriage	2	copy of marriage certificate birth of a child	2	copy of child's birth certificate child turns 12	1	copy of child's birth certificate
new mortgage	1	copy of mortgage documents signed by member

* None of the evidentiary requirements require independent certification.

To apply for additional units of cover, you must complete the 'insurance options application' form on page 27. There is no requirement to provide satisfactory evidence of health, however the automatic increase will only occur upon providing proof of the occurrence of the life event as described above.

Life Events Top-Up cover is not available if you have fixed cover. If you wish to take advantage of this option you will need to remain on unitised cover or, if you switched to fixed cover you will need to switch back to unitised cover.

Additional premiums will be payable for any Life Events Top-Up cover that is granted – an extra $0.62 for each additional unit of Death only cover or an extra $1.03 for each additional unit of Death and TPD cover. (A loading will apply to Death and TPD premiums if you choose an "Own Occupation" definition).

An application for Life Events Top-Up cover is subject to the following conditions:

- The application must be made within 30 days of the life event occurring.
- The maximum additional Life Events Top-Up cover allowed in any 12 month period is 4 units of cover;
- Life Events Top-Up cover is not available to members who are on special acceptance terms (for example, subject to exclusions or loadings) or members who have previously made a claim or who have lodged a claim for insured benefits with the Fund.

Your ability to apply for other additional voluntary insurance cover (subject to providing satisfactory medical evidence) is not affected.

Own Occupation TPD cover (professional and white collar workers only)

If you are a Professional or White Collar worker, you can apply for TPD cover based on an "Own Occupation" definition. This means that any claim for TPD will be assessed having regard to your capacity to resume your own occupation (not any occupation for which you might be qualified). The definition of Professional and White Collar worker are detailed below:

professional worker

Means a member who:

- is an accountant, doctor, lawyer and other like professional; and
- typically holds a tertiary qualification; and
- holds membership of a professional body or association

OR

- is a senior executive of a company with at least 20 staff; and
 - has an annual salary in excess of $100,000; and
 - who satisfies the definition of White Collar worker.

white collar worker

Means a member whose duties are:

- professional, managerial, administrative or similar white collar sedentary natured tasks; and
- do not involve any manual labour; and
- undertaken entirely within an office or similar environment (excluding travel time to and from one office or similar environment to another).

To apply for an "Own Occupation definition", you must complete the 'insurance options application' form on page 27. Any application for an "Own Occupation" definition is subject to a 7% loading on your Death and TPD premium. See page 19 for further details.

30 or 60 day waiting period (Income Protection)

When you join the Health Super Fund as a result of commencing work with a Registered Health Super Employer, your Default Income Protection cover is subject to a default 90 day waiting period. You can however apply for a 30 day or 60 day waiting period. The waiting period determines when you can commence to receive Income Protection benefits if you are eligible to receive them. Members not entitled to Default Income Protection cover who apply to the Insurer for Income Protection cover will automatically be subject to a 90 day waiting period, unless they apply for a shorter waiting period.

If you would like to apply for a 30 or 60 day waiting period in relation to your Default Income Protection cover or any additional or voluntary Income Protection cover you may have, you can apply by completing the 'insurance Income Protection waiting period application' form on page 25. A shorter waiting period is only available on providing satisfactory evidence to the Insurer. Higher premiums apply if you are granted Income Protection cover based on a shorter waiting period. See page 21 for further details.

Death cover

An insured Death benefit may be paid by the Insurer in the event of your death. The insured Death benefit will be credited to your Health Super account.

An insured benefit may also be paid in the event that you become terminally ill (known as a Terminal Illness benefit). The Terminal Illness benefit is a pre-payment of your insured Death benefit. To be eligible you will need to provide the Insurer with medical evidence that you are terminally ill and not expected to live for a further 12 months. This payment is only available prior to your 70th birthday.

No insured benefit is payable if you suffer from a Terminal Illness due to intentional self-inflicted injury or infection, or any attempt at suicide within 13 months of cover commencing, recommencing or increasing (in which case, only the increased amount will not be payable). Payment of the insured Terminal Illness benefit is in full discharge of the insured Death benefit.

The amount of Death benefit paid under the Health Super Fund's Trust Deed will be your Health Super account balance, including the proceeds of the insured Death benefit. For information about how the Death benefit is paid to your beneficiaries see page 10 of the PDS.

How much Death cover can you apply for?

To see how much Death cover you can apply for (per unit of cover), refer to the table on pages 12 and 13.

Total and Permanent Disablement (TPD) cover

An insured benefit may be paid by the Insurer if you become Totally and Permanently Disabled. The amount will be credited to your Health Super account. A TPD payment will only be made to you if you satisfy the relevant condition of release under superannuation law and the payment is permitted under the Health Super Fund's Trust Deed.

The amount that will be paid under the Health Super Fund's Trust Deed will be your Health Super account balance, including the proceeds (if any) of your insured TPD benefit.

How much TPD cover can you apply for?

Most members have 2 units of default cover, but to see how much TPD cover you can apply for, refer to the table on pages 12 and 13.

What is TPD?

The definition of TPD depends on whether a default definition applies, an "Own Occupation" definition applies and whether you are working less than 15 hours a week (averaged over three consecutive months prior to your claim) at the time of your claim. When you join the Health Super Fund as a result of commencing work with a Registered Health Super Employer, your TPD cover is subject to the Default definition (as set out below). An "Own Occupation" definition will only apply upon application by members who satisfy the requirements of the definitions of Professional or White Collar workers and acceptance by the Insurer (see page 9 for details).

default TPD definition

You are Totally and Permanently Disabled if the Insurer and the Trustee is satisfied on medical or other evidence that as a result of injury, sickness or disease you:

- Have not performed any work for an uninterrupted period of at least 6 consecutive months solely due to the same injury, sickness or disease; and
- Are attending, and under the regular care and following the advice of a registered Medical Practitioner* and have undergone all reasonable and usual treatment including rehabilitation for the injury, sickness or disease; and
- After consideration of all the medical evidence and other evidence as the Insurer may require, have become incapacitated to such an extent as to render you unlikely ever to be able to engage in your own occupation and any occupation for which you are reasonably suited by education, training and experience.

OR

You have suffered the total and irrecoverable loss of use of:

- Both hands; or
- Both feet; or
- One hand and one foot; or
- The sight of both eyes; or
- One hand and the sight of one eye; or
- One foot and the sight of one eye.

*Medical Practitioner means a legally qualified and registered medical practitioner. It does not include your employer or a member of your immediate family.

Only one insured benefit is payable if you are determined as being TPD by the Insurer and the Trustee and the amount payable cannot exceed the insured Death benefit.

TPD additional cover while working less than 15 hours per week

If you make a TPD claim and work less than 15 hours per week (averaged over 3 consecutive months prior to the claim), Health Super and the Insurer will make an assessment of your claim against your additional cover (if any) based upon the following definition:

The Insured Member having been (for a period of 6 consecutive months after the commencement of the injury, sickness or disease) continuously and totally unable to perform at least three of the following activities of daily living, as certified by a registered Medical Practitioner appointed by the Insurer, and provided such continued inability is irreversible, as certified by that registered Medical Practitioner.

The activities of daily living are:

bathing

The ability to wash yourself either in the bath or shower or by sponge bath without the standby assistance of another person.

dressings

The ability to put on and take off all garments and medically necessary braces or artificial limbs usually worn, and to fasten and unfasten them, without the standby assistance of another person.

eating

The ability to feed oneself, once food has been prepared and made available, without the standby assistance of another person.

toileting

The ability to get to and from and on and off the toilet, without the standby assistance of another person and ability to manage bowel and bladder functions through the use of protective undergarments or surgical appliances, if appropriate.

transferring

The ability to move in and out of a chair without the standby assistance of another person.

Please note: This definition is applied only to a claim against any additional cover where a member is working less than 15 hours per week (averaged over 3 consecutive months prior to the claim). A claim against any automatic cover is subject to the Default Definition on page 10 (under 'what is TPD?').

If you are a Professional or White Collar worker and apply for an "Own Occupation" definition the above limited definition of TPD will apply for any additional cover (i.e. additional to 2 units of TPD cover) where you are working less than 15 hours per week (averaged over 3 consecutive months prior to the claim). A claim against any Default Cover where a member has applied for the "Own Occupation" definition is subject to the TPD definition below.

"Own Occupation" definition (professional and white collar workers only)

If you have been granted TPD cover based on an "Own Occupation" definition, you are Totally and Permanently Disabled if the Insurer and Health Super is satisfied on medical or other evidence that as a result of injury, sickness or disease you:

- Have not performed any work for an uninterrupted period of at least 6 consecutive months solely due to the same injury, sickness or disease; and
- Are attending, and under the regular care and following the advice of a registered Medical Practitioner and have undergone all reasonable and usual treatment including rehabilitation for the injury, sickness or disease; and
- After consideration of all the medical evidence and other evidence as the Insurer may require, have become incapacitated to such an extent as to render you unlikely ever to be able to engage in your own occupation.

OR

You have suffered the total and irrecoverable loss of use of:

- Both hands; or
- Both feet; or
- One hand and one foot; or
- The sight of both eyes; or
- One hand and the sight of one eye; or
- One foot and the sight of one eye.

Only one insured benefit is payable if you are determined as being TPD by the Insurer and Health Super and the amount payable cannot exceed the insured Death benefit.

what is the TPD waiting period?

TPD benefits can only be considered and approved by the Insurer and Health Super once you have been absent from work for a continuous period of 6 months due to an injury, sickness or disease. Notwithstanding this, Health Super may (subject to superannuation legislation and the Trust Deed governing the Fund) make an early payment of the TPD benefit at its discretion.

amount of Death only or Death & TPD cover

The amount of Death only cover or Death and TPD cover applicable to you depends on whether you are eligible for Default (unitised) cover and any voluntary (additional) cover you apply for. The following table shows the amount of cover available for each unit of cover.

The amount of Death only or Death and TPD cover will also depend on whether you have opted to fix your insurance cover (see page 8).

Death and TPD benefit scale (per unit of cover)

Income Protection cover

Income Protection cover provides you with a monthly insured benefit if you are Totally Disabled (as defined below) due to sickness or injury for a period in excess of the 90 day waiting period (or other waiting period granted to you upon application to the Insurer). You can apply for a 30 or 60 day waiting period which will mean payment of a higher premium. For information about the increased premium see page 21. To apply for a 30 or 60 day waiting period please complete the 'insurance Income Protection waiting period application' form on page 25.

Income Protection also provides you with a monthly insured benefit if you are Partially Disabled (as defined below) for longer than the applicable waiting period.

Any Income Protection payments will begin to be paid after the waiting period upon providing satisfactory health evidence to the Insurer.

The benefit payment period is for a maximum period of two years from time of first payment.

what is the Income Protection waiting period?

No insured benefits are payable during the waiting period which commences from the date that you are first examined and certified by a Medical Practitioner as being Totally Disabled and have ceased work (see the definition below).

When you join the Health Super Fund as a result of commencing work with a Registered Health Super Employer, your Default Income Protection cover is subject to a default 90 day waiting period. You can apply for a 30 or 60 day waiting period.

You are permitted to return to work for up to 5 days during the waiting period without re-triggering the waiting period.

what is the definition of totally disabled?

To claim against your Income Protection insurance for Total Disability you must meet the definition of Total Disability. The definition is different depending on the hours you work. See the definitions below.

if you work less than 15 hours per week (averaged over 3 consecutive months immediately prior to the claim)

You are Totally Disabled if you suffer from a sickness or injury and as a result you are:

- Incapacitated to such an extent as to render you unable to engage in your own occupation or any occupation for which you are reasonably suited by education, training and experience; and
- Remain under the regular care, attendance and following the advice of a Medical Practitioner in relation to that sickness or injury; and if you work 15 hours per week or more (averaged over 3 consecutive months immediately prior to the claim)
- Are not engaged in any occupation, whether paid or unpaid.

You are Totally Disabled if you suffer from a sickness or injury and as a result you are:

- Continuously unable to perform your regular occupation;
- Remain under the care, attendance and following the advice of a registered Medical Practitioner in relation to that sickness or injury; and what is the definition of partially disabled?
- Are not engaged in any occupation, whether paid or unpaid.

You are Partially Disabled if due to sickness or injury you:

- Have been Totally Disabled for at least 10 out of 14 consecutive days during the applicable waiting period and because of the injury or sickness which directly caused the Total Disability;
- Are able to perform one or more duties of your regular occupation but are unable to perform all the duties of your regular occupation on a full-time basis;
- Are capable of earning an income from your occupation or another occupation at a monthly rate of less than 85% of your Pre-Disability Income; and
- Are under regular care, attendance and following the advice of a registered Medical Practitioner.

If, immediately following a period of Total Disability, you return to work:

- With the same Registered Health Super Employer;
- With another Registered Health Super Employer on the advice of a registered Medical Practitioner and with Health Super's consent; or
- In some gainful employment and are earning less than you would have been had you not suffered from the disability, for at least 10 out of 14 consecutive days during the waiting period, you may be entitled to claim a Partial Disability benefit – this is calculated as a proportion of the monthly Income Protection benefit payable for Total Disability.

how much Income Protection cover can you insure yourself for?

You can apply to increase Income Protection cover up to a maximum of 85% of gross Pre-Disability Income or $20,000 per month, whichever is the lesser, subject to meeting the Insurer's health evidence requirements.

Up to the first 75% of your Pre-Disability Income will be paid directly to you and any additional benefit of up to 10% will be paid directly into your Health Super account as superannuation contributions.

Each unit of cover you purchase is equivalent to $500 of cover per month.

The following table shows the number of units of cover applicable to each level of salary. It is important not to apply for more units of cover than your salary allows, as any benefits cannot exceed 85% of your Pre-Disability Income. Remember, if you are eligible, you may have automatically received 2 units of Default Income Protection cover (see page 21).

If you wish to cancel or reduce the number of units you have you must complete the 'insurance reduction/cancellation' form on page 57 of the PDS.

what is the monthly insured benefit?

The monthly insured benefit the Insurer will pay if you are Totally Disabled is the lesser of:

- The monthly insured benefit you are currently paying for prior to commencement of your claim; or
- 85% of your monthly Pre-Disability Income based on the 12 months immediately preceding your Total Disability as defined in the Policy.

Income Protection payments are paid monthly in arrears and are indexed annually by the Consumer Price Index, or by 10%, whichever is lesser.

A rehabilitation expense payment may also be available for members receiving Income Protection payments. If Income Protection benefits are being paid by the Insurer, any expenses incurred by the member, which are designed to rehabilitate the member or return the member to work, will be reimbursed.

The maximum amount the Insurer will approve for reimbursement is equivalent to six monthly benefit payments. The Insurer will require satisfactory evidence that the expense has been incurred before approving payments. The Trustee must also be satisfied that the payments can be made from the Fund.

what is pre-disability income?

Pre-Disability Income is your average gross monthly income earned over the 12 months before you became Totally Disabled. It also includes regular commissions, regular bonuses, regular overtime and fringe benefits (excluding mandatory superannuation contributions but not excluding salary sacrificed superannuation contributions).

If you directly or indirectly own part or all of a business or professional practice from which you earn a regular income, Pre-Disability Income includes any income that is generated by the business due to your own personal exertion or activities less business expenses. Investment income and mandated super contributions are excluded.

what tax is deducted from monthly insured benefit payments?

Insured benefit payments are subject to Pay As You Go (PAYG) Withholding tax. Monthly insured benefit payments will be payable, net of the relevant tax, directly to your bank account using electronic funds transfer. The benefits paid under Income Protection insurance are paid out as taxable income and attract PAYG Withholding tax, the same as salary or wages. PAYG Withholding tax will be deducted from the benefit before it is paid, and forwarded to the Australian Taxation Office.

If you receive Income Protection payments you will be required to provide your TFN to Health Super. If you do not provide your TFN, Health Super will be required to deduct tax from your benefit payments at the highest personal tax rate applicable at the time, rather than your marginal tax rate.

The 10% portion of the Income Protection benefit paid as superannuation contributions (if applicable) will be paid to your Health Super account. No income tax is deducted from this amount but normal superannuation taxes will apply.

when the monthly insured benefit may be reduced (income protection offsets)

If you receive income from one of the following sources:

- Workers' Compensation or Motor Accident Compensation or similar legislation in relation to the sickness or injury;
- any other payments, statutory or otherwise paid for loss of income;
- any other payments made under disability income type insurance policies; or
- any other lump sum payments (other than a TPD benefit under the insurance policy), while you are receiving Income Protection payments and as a result your combined income exceeds 85% of your Pre-Disability Income, your Income Protection payments will be reduced by the amount of the excess income.

Income benefits, from the sources referred to above, commuted to a lump sum will be converted to a monthly amount and applied over a maximum 5 year period for the purposes of assessing the excess income.

when do the monthly insured benefit payments end?

the Insurer will pay the monthly insured benefit until the first of the following occurs:

- You are no longer Totally or Partially Disabled;
- You reach age 65;
- The date you are able to resume normal duties;
- The 2 year maximum benefit payment period expires; or
- Your death.

what happens if your disability re-occurs?

If you make a further claim arising from the same or related disability as the first claim, then the further claim will be treated as a:

- Separate claim if it occurred after the date that you returned to work for at least 6 months; or
- Continuation of the original claim, if made within 6 months of ceasing payments from the earlier claim (a waiting period will not apply but the maximum benefit period will be adjusted).

	death cover	TPD cover	income protection
What exclusions apply?	Death benefit will not be paid in the case of death arising from: • Active Service in the Armed Forces of any country or international organisation other than the Australian Defence Force Reserve; • A war or act of war (whether declared or not); or • HIV/AIDS (including suicide where HIV/AIDS is present), which you knew to exist prior to the cover commencing and/or if you are employed by a specific employer group with 'affirmative action' policies of employing people with HIV/AIDS; • Death by suicide occurring within 13 months of an increase in cover being effected (in the case of voluntary increases in Death cover).	TPD benefit will not be paid in the case of sickness or injury arising from: • Active Service in the Armed Forces of any country or international organisation other than the Australian Defence Force Reserve; • A war or act of war (whether declared or not); or • HIV/AIDS (including suicide where HIV/AIDS is present), which you knew to exist prior to the cover commencing and/or if you are employed by a specific employer group with 'affirmative action' policies of employing people with HIV/AIDS; • TPD resulting from intentional, self inflicted injury, occurring within 13 months of an increase being effected (in the case of voluntary increases in TPD cover).	Income Protection will not be paid in the case of sickness or injury arising from: • Active Service in the Armed Forces of any country or international organisation other than the Australian Defence Force Reserve; • A war or act of war (whether declared or not); • Any intentional self-inflicted injury or attempted suicide or self-destruction while sane or insane; • HIV/AIDS (including attempted suicide where HIV/AIDS is present) which you knew to exist prior to the cover commencing and if you are employed by a specific employer group with 'affirmative action' policies of employing people with HIV/AIDS; • An uncomplicated pregnancy, childbirth, or miscarriage.

² Special conditions apply if you are working for an affirmative action employer or for a Sheltered workshop. See page 23 for more information. Special conditions may also apply if you are not "At Work" on the day your membership of the Fund commences.

when does Death, TPD and Income Protection insurance cover commence?

If you are eligible for Default cover, your Default Death, TPD and Income Protection cover commences on the date that you become a Health Super member provided you are "At Work" on this day.

"At Work" means the member being employed to carry out identifiable duties and performing those duties, without restriction due to illness or injury on a full-time basis, (if engaged on a full-time basis), or part-time basis, (if engaged on a part-time basis). A member will still be considered to meet the requirements of this definition if not "At Work" on the date they become a Health Super member, but still employed, and the absence is not due to illness or injury (for example, the absence is due to annual leave).

If you are not "At Work" on the date you become a Health Super member, limited cover (called "New Events" cover) will apply until you are back "At Work" and performing normal duties for one day on normal hours after which full Default cover will be provided. Your employer will notify the Fund whether you are "At Work" at the relevant time.

New Events cover means that a member will only be covered for claims arising from a sickness which first becomes apparent or an injury which first occurs on or after the date they become a Health Super member and is not an injury or sickness which has caused the member to be not "At Work" on that date.

If you choose to take out additional insurance above the Default cover, or if you have a Health Super Spouse account or you are not eligible for Default cover and apply for insurance, cover will commence when:

- The Insurer has accepted your application for insurance; and
- You have sufficient account balance to cover the annual insurance premiums.

You will be notified in writing of the Insurer's assessment of your application and, if it is accepted, the date that your additional insurance cover commences. Any application is subject to having a minimum account balance of $1,000.

how much does Death, TPD and Income Protection cover cost?

The cost of insurance cover for Death, TPD and Income Protection will depend on the type of cover applicable to you or chosen by you and the level of cover you require. You can estimate the weekly premium using the premium rate tables below.

Death and TPD unitised cover premium scale (per unit per week)

The table shows the premium cost per unit per week for each unit of cover held. Please refer to the table on pages 12 and 13 for the benefit amount applicable to your age. The premiums per unit are applicable for any additional units of cover (over and above any automatic cover you may have been provided) applied for under an application for additional voluntary cover or arising from increases in cover due to the occurrence of certain life events (if you apply for Life Events Top-Up cover).

type	cost per unit
death only	$0.62
death & TPD	$1.03
death & TPD "own occupation"	$1.10

*Any application for an "Own Occupation" definition for TPD benefits (see page 9) is subject to a 7% loading - each unit of Death & TPD cover will cost $1.10 (per week) rather than $1.03.

Death and TPD fixed cover premium scale (per $1,000 sum insured per week)

The following table shows the premium cost per week per $1,000 sum insured. Fixed cover is available in multiples of $1,000, up to a maximum of $5m for Death and $2m for TPD. Fixed cover applies instead of unit-based cover upon application.

60 days	$2.22	$0.70

how are your insurance premiums paid?

Insurance premiums are calculated pro-rata and deducted from your superannuation account annually in advance on 1 July or the date you became a Health Super member. If you leave the Health Super Fund during the year, you will receive a rebate for any insurance premiums relating to the period after your termination of membership. Your insurance premium will change as your age changes (if you have fixed cover). If you apply for and are granted Life Events Top-Up cover, your insurance premium will automatically increase for any additional units of cover allocated to you for the occurrence of a Life Event.

The deduction of insurance premiums from your account does not automatically mean that you have insurance cover. Insurance cover is subject to eligibility and other criteria based on your personal circumstances that will not always be known by the Trustee. If you do not meet this criteria, we will refund any insurance premiums relating to your period of ineligibility.

important additional information about insurance

can you change your level and type of insurance?

You can apply to increase your Death, TPD or Income Protection cover or change the type of cover at any time by completing the 'insurance application' form on page 51 of the PDS and the 'Confidential Personal Statement' form on pages 52 – 55 of the PDS.

You can also:

- Apply for automatic increases in your Death and TPD cover on the occurrence of certain life events;
- If you are a Professional or White Collar worker, apply for an "Own Occupation" TPD Definition;
- Apply to convert your unitised Death and TPD cover to fixed Death and TPD cover;
- Apply for a 30 or 60 day waiting period in respect of Income Protection cover.

Please refer to the forms on pages 25-28 in this SPDS to apply for any of the above.

Your application will affect the amount of insurance premiums you pay and is subject to providing satisfactory health evidence or other evidence to the Insurer.

You can also cancel or reduce any insurance cover you have (including Default insurance cover) at any time by completing the 'Insurance reduction/cancellation' form on page 57 of the PDS.

Before you make the decision to cancel your Default insurance cover (if any) you should be aware that if you wish to reinstate your insurance cover at a later time, it will then be subject to the completion of a Confidential Personal Statement and any other underwriting conditions as determined by the Insurer. You should seek advice from a licensed or authorised financial adviser about your personal insurance needs.

accidental cover for Death or Death and TPD

If you have sufficient funds to meet the minimum account balance requirements (i.e. $1,000), the Insurer will provide interim Death only or Death and TPD by Accidental cover while an application for additional Death only cover or Death and TPD (respectively) is being assessed. The lump sum insured is based on the level of cover applied for (subject to a maximum of $500,000). Cover is provided from the date an application for the additional Death only or Death and TPD cover is received by the Insurer until the earliest of:

- The date your application is accepted or declined by the Insurer; or
- The date your application is withdrawn; or
- 90 days from the date the Insurer receives your fully completed application form for increased cover.

Exclusions apply (for example, death caused by sport or pastimes not normally covered and pre-existing conditions).

what if your insurance cover lapses?

Your insurance cover may lapse if your account balance is not sufficient to cover premiums. Every year on or around 1 July, the Trustee reviews member's account balances to ensure that there are sufficient funds to cover premiums for the year. If there are insufficient monies in your account balance we will write to you requesting that you top-up your account balance to ensure that you are covered for your current insurance arrangement for the following year. If you do not top-up your account within 3 months of receiving notice to top-up, cover will cease. Your insurance cover may be reinstated if you complete a new 'insurance application' form and provide satisfactory health evidence, including undergoing any medical examinations or tests required by the Insurer. Insurance cover will only recommence when your application for cover to be reinstated is accepted by the Insurer and cannot be backdated.

what happens if you leave your Registered Health Super Employer?

In the event that you terminate your employment with your Registered Health Super Employer, your insurance entitlements will change as follows:

Death and TPD insurance

Your existing level of Death only or Death and TPD insurance cover will continue automatically without the need to supply any medical evidence. In the event that you do not wish to continue your Death only or Death and TPD cover you may cancel it at any time by completing the 'insurance reduction/cancellation' form on page 57 of the PDS. The effective date of insurance cover cancellation is the date Health Super receives your request. If you do cancel your insurance cover, premiums will no longer be deducted from your Health Super account.

Income Protection insurance

Your Income Protection cover ceases on the date you resign or leave your Registered Health Super Employer. You may at any point be eligible to reapply for Income Protection cover providing you meet the following criteria:

- You are a resident in Australia;
- You are aged 64 or under;
- You are in active employment; and
- You have Death and TPD cover at the default level as a minimum.

Any application for cover will be subject to the Insurer's normal underwriting conditions.

what if you re-join a Registered Health Super Employer?

If you recommence employment with a Registered Health Super Employer, a new Health Super account will be established for you. You will receive the Default level of Death and TPD and Income Protection insurance cover (subject to eligibility criteria, see page 17). This will replace any Default cover granted previously but does not replace any voluntary cover you already hold and have elected to maintain. You may apply in writing to consolidate (or merge) these Health Super accounts into one at any time by writing to Health Super or by completing the 'Merge my account' form available from our website www.healthsuper.com.au.

Please be aware that if you have two accounts within the Fund, the Insurer will pay one benefit on Death, TPD or Total/Partial Disablement.

what happens when I take leave without pay or maternity/paternity leave?

In the event that you are granted leave from employment without pay, maternity or paternity leave, your insurance cover (if any) will continue for up to 12 months (from the time your period of leave commenced) subject to:

- a written agreement from your employer granting you the leave without pay;
- you have a firm return-to-work date agreed from your employer; and
- you are not travelling to a war zone.

Health Super must be notified in writing as soon as possible after you become aware of any claim or potential claim. A waiting period will apply. You must provide the Insurer with any information it reasonably considers necessary to properly assess the claim. This will be at your expense except that the Insurer will pay for any medical examinations it reasonably requires you to undergo, although it will not pay for your travel costs or any costs incurred for non-attendance for such examinations. If you are overseas you may also be required to return to Australia at your own expense to enable the Insurer to assess your claim.

In the case of a Terminal Illness benefit claim, both Health Super and the Insurer will make every effort to ensure the claim is processed as expeditiously as possible. In the event that there is a delay, Health Super may pay a member their Health Super account balance (if any) independently from any insured benefit, but only if the member satisfies a condition of release and the payment is permitted by the Trust Deed (see page 9 of the PDS).

If a claim for Death, Terminal Illness or TPD insured benefit is accepted, that insured benefit will generally be paid into your Health Super account. Any TPD or Terminal Illness benefit can only be paid to you if you meet a condition of release as set out under superannuation law and the payment is permitted by the Health Super Fund's Trust Deed (see page 9 of the PDS).

There is a 6 month waiting period for insured TPD benefits and a 90 day waiting period (unless a shorter period applies) for insured Income Protection benefits. The payment of any insured benefit is subject to the acceptance of your claim by the Insurer and Health Super.

reduction of insured benefits

When an insured Death benefit becomes payable, all other cover ceases. When an insured Terminal Illness benefit becomes payable, payment is in full discharge of any insured Death and/or TPD benefit. If an insured TPD benefit becomes payable, payment is in full discharge of the insured Death benefit and Terminal Illness benefit.

what if you work for an affirmative action employer?

If you work for a Registered Health Super Employer with affirmative action policies in relation to people with HIV/AIDS; and you contracted HIV or AIDS before 1 July 2004; and make a Death or Disablement claim as a result of having HIV/AIDS, then you will not be covered for Death, TPD or Income Protection cover. If you believe that this affects you, you should notify Health Super immediately and cancel any insurance cover you may have.

These affirmative action employers include, but are not limited to, the following: AIDS Action Council of ACT, AIDS Council of Central Australia, AIDS Council of NSW, AIDS Council of Housing Action Group of Victoria, AIDS LINE Incorporated, Adelaide HIV/AIDS Counseling Team, Australia Federation of AIDS Organisations, Foley House Incorporated, National Association of People Living with HIV/AIDS, NSW Users and AIDS Association, Queensland AIDS Council, Queensland Aboriginal and Islander Health Forum, QUIVVA, Tasmanian AIDS Council, The Australian AIDS Fund Incorporated, Victorian AIDS Council/Gay Men's Health Centre, and the

what if you work for a sheltered workshop?

If you have a disability (either or both of a physical or intellectual nature) and work for a Sheltered Workshop or in an arrangement similar to a Sheltered Workshop, then you will not be covered for Income Protection. If you believe that this affects you, you should notify Health Super immediately and cancel any Income Protection cover you may have.

These Sheltered Workshop employers include, but are not limited to, the following: Multiple Sclerosis Society of Australia, Peter Harcourt Centre, Roytal Enterprises, Nadrasca Incorporated, Vision Australia, Scope (Victoria), and Yooralla Society of Victoria.

worldwide cover

The Insurer provides insurance cover 24 hours a day anywhere in the world, subject to the conditions of cover in the Policy.

If you are seconded overseas for reasons of employment (other than to a war zone) for more than 12 months, then you must write to Health Super in order to negotiate an extension with the Insurer. The Insurer may accept the extension depending on the type and location of your secondment. Otherwise, your Income Protection cover will cease after 6 months and your Death and TPD cover will cease after 12 months. This description is only a summary so if you are intending to travel overseas, you should call our Superline on 1800 331 719 to see whether you are covered.

insurance policy

The information about insurance is a summary of the significant terms. The payment of an insured benefit is subject to the terms of the relevant insurance policies between Health Super and the Insurer. Health Super will not make any payment greater than the amount actually received from the Insurer. If an insured benefit is payable under a policy, the benefit will be paid to Health Super, credited to your Health Super account and then paid in accordance with superannuation law and the Health Super Trust Deed. Health Super can, by agreement with the Insurer, vary the contractual arrangements for insurance at any time. You will be notified of any variation that affects you.

what insurance options are you applying for?

Please specify the insurance option(s) you are applying for by ticking the appropriate box in section 1, 2 or 3.

1. TPD definition (Own Occupation)

☐ I would like to apply for the Own Occupation definition for my TPD cover

I am aware that there will be an additional premium loading if the Own Occupation definition is applied to my TPD insurance cover. Please refer to page 19 for premiums. Before choosing this option please ensure that you read page 9 and page 11 and consider obtaining professional advice regarding your insurance arrangements.

Please answer the following questions below to clarify if you meet the eligibility provisions for the TPD Definition (Own Occupation).

☐ Yes ☐ No 1 Are you an accountant, doctor, lawyer or other like professional?

☐ Yes ☐ No 2 Do you hold a tertiary qualification?

☐ Yes ☐ No 3 Do you have membership to a professional body or association?

OR

☐ Yes ☐ No 4 Are you a senior executive of a company with at least twenty staff members?

☐ Yes ☐ No 5 Are you earning in excess of $100,000 per annum from your profession?

☐ Yes ☐ No 6 Do the duties of your occupation satisfy the definition of "White Collar Worker"?

"White Collar Worker" means a person who is performing duties that are professional, managerial, administrative or similarly sedentary in nature. The duties do not involve any manual labour and are undertaken entirely within an office or similar environment (excluding travel to and from the office or similar environment).

Please note: Insured Members working under 15 hours per week at the time of their claim will have their additional cover assessed under a "Limited Definition of Total and Permanent Disablement". Refer to page 11 for more information. Any default or automatic cover will however be assessed against the "Own Occupation" TPD Definition.

2. Life Events Top-Up cover

☐ I would like to apply for Life Events Top-Up cover by ticking the requested designated 'Life Event' below.

Event	Additional Units	Evidence Required (please ensure copy of evidence is attached)
☐ Marriage	2 units Death & TPD	Photocopy of Marriage Certificate
☐ Birth of Child	2 units Death & TPD	Photocopy of child's Birth Certificate
☐ Child Turns 12 years	1 unit Death & TPD	Photocopy of child's Birth Certificate
☐ New Mortgage	1 unit Death & TPD	Photocopy of Mortgage documents signed by member

Please answer the following questions below to clarify if you meet the eligibility provisions for the Life Events Top-Up Cover

- ☐ Yes ☐ No 1 Have you made application for the Life Events Top-Up Cover within 30 days of the date upon which the designated 'Life Event' has occurred?
- ☐ Yes ☐ No 2 Is your current level of insurance cover on standard terms and is not subject to any exclusions and loadings?
- ☐ Yes ☐ No 3 Have you lodged an application during the last 12-month period for Life Events Top-Up cover?
- ☐ Yes ☐ No 4 Have you previously lodged a claim in respect to Life Events Top-Up cover?

Please note: Insured Members shall only be entitled to a maximum of 4 units of additional cover during any 12-month period. To apply for Life Events Top-Up Cover you must have unitised cover in the Fund.

3. fixed cover/unitised cover

☐ I would like to fix my cover based on my current unitised level

I am aware that there will be increased insurance premiums with an increase of age.

Please note: If you nominate a higher amount than your current unitised cover you will need to complete the 'insurance application' form and 'confidential personal statement' on pages 51-56 of the PDS.

☐ I would like to convert my Fixed Cover to the applicable unitised level based on my current age (current levels of cover based on age are set out on pages 12-13).

I am aware insurance cover will be rounded to the nearest unit to replace the fixed cover I previously held. Where a total of less than one unit of cover is required, the cover will be rounded up to one unit of cover.

Supplementary Product Disclosure Statement (SPDS)

Prepared by the Trustee, Health Super Pty ABN 97 084 162 489, AFSL No. 246492, RSE L0000482 the Trustee of the Health Super Fund ABN 88 293 440 675, RSE R1004113 pursuant to the provisions of the Health Super Trust Deed

Prepared 24 July 2007

This is a supplementary Product Disclosure Statement. It supplements and should be read in conjunction with the Health Super Product Disclosure Statement (PDS) for Accumulation Members dated 1 January 2007, and the Supplementary Product Disclosure Statement prepared 1 July 2007.

On Page 19 of the SPDS dated 1 July 2007, the heading “Death and TPD fixed cover premium scale (per $1,000 sum insured per week)” is replaced with the following heading – “Death and TPD fixed cover premiums scale (per $1,000 sum insured per annum)”.

On page 19 of the SPDS the paragraph under the heading Death and TPD fixed cover premium scale (per $1,000 sum insured per week)” is replaced by the following:

“Death and TPD fixed cover premium scale (per $1,000 sum insured per annum). The following table shows the premium cost per annum per $1,000 sum insured. Fixed cover is available in multiples of $1,000, up to a maximum of $5m for Death and $2m for TPD. Fixed cover applies instead of unit-based cover upon application.”

welcome to HEALTH SUPER

maximise your retirement savings

The Health Super Fund gets your super working harder for your future, today. Your Health Super account can accept a wide range of contribution types including employer, personal, spouse and salary sacrifice. And it's an ideal place for you to combine and manage all your superannuation.

top rated super fund

platinum rating

The Health Super Fund is a platinum rated super fund. This is the highest possible recognition from SuperRatings and is only awarded to the best value for money funds.

best value for money fund

Platinum ratings do not come easily, and are only awarded to the best value for money funds. The Platinum rating is a result of a detailed analysis by SuperRatings of over 120 multi-employer superannuation funds, who service over 10 million member accounts and $300 billion in super funds.

Visit www.superratings.com.au for more information about the rating methodology.

AAA rating

The Health Super Fund has been ranked as an exceptional quality super fund with the recognition of a AAA rating from Selecting Super's Quality Fund Assessment.

Visit www.selectingsuper.com.au for their rating methodology.

all profits go to our members

Health Super is an industry fund dedicated primarily to the Health and Community Services Industry. As an industry fund, we operate for the benefit of our members - not external shareholders. Therefore, except for recovering costs required to operate the fund, all profits will go to our members.

decades of experience

- Over 40 years experience
- Over 200,000+ members
- Over $6 billion in assets important things to note

Superannuation accounts in the Health Super Fund are offered and issued by Health Super Pty Ltd (Health Super).

Health Super Fund is a resident, regulated superannuation fund within the meaning of the Superannuation Industry (Supervision) (SIS) Act 1993 and is not subject to a direction from the Australian Prudential Regulation Authority (APRA) not to accept contributions.

Health Super may change any of the terms and conditions in this Product Disclosure Statement (PDS), in the case of material changes, on 30 days notice to members. Where required, the Investment Managers of the Member Investment Choice options named in this PDS have given, and not withdrawn, their consent to be named in this PDS.

the role of this Product Disclosure Statement (PDS)

The information in this PDS will tell you about your Health Super account and other features available in the Health Super Fund. It contains a glossary of terms (page 41) to assist you in reading this PDS. If you have a choice about whether to choose Health Super or not (because your employer has offered more than one fund to which it can contribute), this PDS will help you compare the features of the Health Super Fund to other superannuation funds.

This PDS provides you with general advice only. It does not take into account your individual objectives, financial situation or needs. Therefore you should consider the appropriateness of this product having regard to your individual objectives, financial situation or needs. Health Super recommends that you seek advice from a financial services licensee or an authorised representative of a financial services licensee before investing or making any financial decisions in relation to this product.

no guarantees

Health Super or any of the other entities named in this PDS do not guarantee the return of capital or the performance of the Health Super Fund in any way. The value of your Health Super account may rise or fall. In some years returns may be negative if share markets or economic conditions are negative or perform poorly. This may decrease the value of your superannuation account. Past performance is not a reliable indicator of future performance. The rate of earnings credited to your Health Super account may not be the same as the actual earnings of a particular investment option because of the effect of fees and costs (see pages 13 - 15).

unauthorised representations

No person is authorised to give any information or to make any representations in connection with this product, on behalf of Health Super. Any information or representation that is not contained in this PDS may not be relied upon as having been authorised by Health Super.

keeping you informed

This PDS is up-to-date as at the date of issue. Information about this product is subject to change from time to time (for example, returns and asset allocations will change). Health Super reserves the right to change the product specifications and terms of this product where permitted to do so under the Health Super Trust Deed and the law. If any changes to the product occur after this PDS is published, and those changes are not materially adverse, the updated information will be available on our website at www.healthsuper.com.au.

A paper copy of any updated information will be provided without charge on request by contacting Health Super on 1800 33 17 19. If the changes are considered to be materially adverse, Health Super will produce a new or supplementary PDS. Once you are a member of the Health Super Fund, Health Super will tell you about any significant events or material changes which affect any information that is required to be contained in this PDS. Visit www.healthsuper.com.au for the latest revisions.

law

Taxation, superannuation and social security rules can affect your Health Super account. These rules may change from time to time. This PDS contains a summary of the key rules that may impact you. However, as these rules are complex and their impact depends on your personal circumstances, Health Super recommends you seek advice from a licensed financial adviser or taxation adviser.

insurance provider

Health Super's Group Life insurance provider is American International Assurance Company (Australia) Ltd ABN 79 004 837 861 AFSL No. 230043 trading as AIG Life ('AIG' or 'the insurer'). The insurance cover is provided under policies issued to Health Super by AIG Life ('Policy'). Insurance premiums are deducted from your Health Super account. Health Super receives a 1% discount on the total insurance premium that it pays to AIG Life. This amount forms part of the assets of the fund for the purpose of allocating investment returns to members and is, in this way, retained in the fund for the benefit of members.

Member Privileges program

The Health Super Member Privileges program is a discount facility arranged for Health Super Fund members. Any product or service offered through the program is provided by the following companies, and not Health Super:

Travel Insurance: American Home Assurance Company Limited
ABN 67 007 483 267, AFSL No. 230903

Banking offers: Australia and New Zealand Banking Group Limited (ANZ)
ABN 11 005 357 522, AFSL No. 234527

Health insurance: Australian Unity General Insurance Limited
(Australian Unity) ABN 13 078 722 568, AFSL No. 234438

Financial Planning services: Health Super Financial Services Pty Ltd
ABN 37 096 452 318, AFSL No. 240019

Prior to acquiring any of these products or services please obtain a current Product Disclosure Statement from the product issuer or Financial Services Guide from the service provider. Health Super does not endorse nor does it warrant that any of the products or services offered under the program are suitable for you. You should seek independent advice if necessary.

Health Super is not a representative of ANZ, Australian Unity, American Home Assurance Company, or Health Super Financial Planning and receives no commissions when making referrals. The providers may contribute towards the costs of promoting their products or services through Health Super distribution channels.

Health Super Financial Planning is a wholly owned subsidiary of Health Super. Health Super pays a 0.5% trailing commission to Health Super Financial Planning on all Health Super Allocated Pensions. This trailing commission represents half of the annual 1% administration fee charged for the allocated pension product. Health Super also pays a variable monthly amount to Health Super Financial Planning to conduct member seminar programs. Health Super Financial Planning pays Health Super fees for the provision of administration services. For more information about the services provided by Health Super Financial Planning, contact them directly on 1300 78 02 23.

about SUPERANNUATION

what is superannuation?

Superannuation is a long-term investment. The Government has placed restrictions on when a person can have access to benefits. Generally a person cannot access benefits until they reach age 65 or their preservation age.

can you open an account for your spouse?

A Health Super member can open an account for their spouse providing that:

- You are both Australian residents for taxation purposes
- Your spouse is aged under 65 years of age; and
- Your spouse is a person of the opposite sex¹ who is your husband or wife or, although not legally married to you, lives in a bona-fide domestic relationship as husband or wife but does not include a person who lives separately and apart from you on a permanent basis.

To open a Spouse Account an initial contribution of $200 must be received. Alternatively, your spouse can open an account by transferring monies from another superannuation fund or Retirement Savings Account (RSA). For more about how to open a Spouse Account, please refer to page 36.

how does your Health Super account work?

When you join the Health Super Fund, a personal account is set up in your name. All contributions paid into the Health Super Fund by you or your employer, as well as any other money you transfer into the Health Super Fund from another fund, are placed in your Health Super account, after the deduction of any Government taxes.

The money in your superannuation account is then invested in accordance with the Member Investment Choice option you have chosen (or in accordance with the Life Cycle Default Strategy if you haven't made a choice, see page 19). Investment earnings are applied to your Health Super account from the net earnings of the relevant Member Investment Choice option (i.e. after the deduction of certain fees, costs and taxes) and are applied to the daily balance of your Health Super account on withdrawal or on the 30th June each year.

While your money is in the Health Super Fund, Health Super will deduct account-keeping fees from your account, an asset fee (if applicable) and insurance premiums if you have insurance cover (see pages 13-15).

who can contribute to super?

Generally contributions may only be accepted by Health Super for, or in respect of, a person who falls into one of the following categories:

Your age	Superannuation Guarantee (SG) Employer Contributions	Award Employer Contributions	Voluntary Employer Contributions ² (eg. Salary sacrifice)	Member Contributions (eg. after tax top-ups)
Under 65	✓	✓	✓	✓
65 - 69	✓	✓	You must have worked at least 40 hours in not more than 30 consecutive days in the financial year.	You must have worked at least 40 hours in not more than 30 consecutive days in the financial year.
70-74	✗	✓	✗	You must have worked at least 40 hours in not more than 30 consecutive days in the financial year.
Over 75	✗	✓	✗	✗

Please note: There are no restrictions on accepting roll-overs of existing superannuation monies.

¹ Same sex couples are not eligible under current legislation.

² Voluntary Employer Contributions may include salary sacrifice arrangements and discretionary superannuation contributions.

what type of contributions can be added to your account?

Compulsory contributions, personal contributions, salary sacrifice, roll-overs from other funds and spouse contributions. These are just some of the ways that you can boost the money in your Health Super account.

The amount and frequency of contributions that you put into your Health Super account will depend on your personal circumstances including tax considerations. For this reason, you should seek advice from an appropriately qualified financial adviser about contributing to superannuation.

compulsory contributions

Government legislation requires your employer to contribute money to an account set up for your retirement. Currently, most employers must contribute a minimum of 9% of your earnings base (generally that is your ordinary time earnings) into your super account (subject to a maximum earnings base of $35,240 per quarter (as at 2006/07). This is known as Superannuation Guarantee (SG) and it must be paid by your employer at least quarterly.

Your employer is not required to pay SG if you earn less than $450 per month or if other exemptions apply (eg. if you are under 18 and work part-time or if you are over 70). Contact the Australian Taxation Office (ATO) on 13 10 20 about the contribution rules that apply to employers or if you have any other concerns regarding whether your employer is meeting its minimum contribution obligations.

If you are covered by an Industrial Award or Certified Agreement that specifies a higher amount of superannuation contributions, your employer must contribute the higher amount. Check with your union or pay office to see if this is relevant to you.

salary sacrifice contributions

Salary sacrifice occurs when you agree with your employer to put an additional portion of your pre-tax salary into a superannuation fund. When you make these contributions, it may reduce your taxable income and your tax liability. However, it may also reduce your earnings base for SG purposes. You should speak to your financial adviser to determine whether it is of benefit to you.

personal contributions

Personal contributions are extra contributions that you make directly to your superannuation account (subject to Government regulations). These contributions are made from your after-tax income. You can make personal contributions in the following ways:

- Payroll contributions made via your employer out of your after-tax salary;
- Lump sum contributions made via cheque using a 'Top up my super' form, located on page 43; and
- Regular deductions via direct debit from your nominated bank account.

WARNING: On 9 May 2006 the Federal Treasurer announced proposed changes to cap contributions levels for both after tax contributions and deductible contributions. The proposed changes are subject to transitional arrangements, which are under consultation. There is currently no legislation to cover the proposed changes. If you think that you may be affected, you should seek professional advice about the status and impact of the proposals.

To find out more about how to contribute to your Health Super account, refer to the Account Management section on pages 33 - 35.

Government Co-contribution

The Federal Government matches each $1 of personal contributions an eligible person makes to their superannuation account with a Co-Contribution of up to $1.50. The maximum Government Co-Contribution is up to $1,500. Please note that any Government Co-Contributions for which you are eligible will not be received by the Health Super Fund until your annual income tax return has been processed by the ATO (i.e. in the financial year following the lodgement of your income tax return).

To be eligible to receive the full Government Co-Contribution of $1,500 you must have a total income of $28,000 or less and have made a personal contribution of at least $1,000.

For more information regarding the Government Co-Contribution please go to www.ato.gov.au. Health Super recommends you speak to your financial adviser about Government Co-Contributions.

roll-overs

A roll-over occurs when you transfer superannuation monies from one superannuation account or Retirement Savings Account (RSA) to another. Rolling-over all your superannuation money into your Health Super account may save you from paying multiple fees and reduce your paperwork.

Before transferring your old superannuation accounts, you should check to see if the other funds charge any exit or roll-over fees. Health Super does not charge any fees when you roll-over money into or out of a Health Super account.

For more information about how to roll-over other superannuation monies into your Health Super account refer to the Account Management section on pages 33 - 35 or call us on 1800 33 17 19. A 'Combine my super' form is located on page 45.

spouse contributions

Contributions can be made to a Health Super account for your spouse if he/she is under the age 65 years. A tax offset of 18% may be available if you make contributions on behalf of your spouse, up to a maximum of $540.

For further information refer to the ATO website at www.ato.gov.au or phone the ATO directly on 13 10 20 or speak to your financial adviser.

For more information about opening a Health Super account for your spouse, see page 7 and the Account Management section on pages 33 - 35. A 'Spouse account application' form is located on page 59.

contributions from self-employed persons

If you are self-employed (or substantially self-employed), you may be able to claim a tax deduction for certain contributions you make to your Health Super account. To make a claim, you will need to download a Tax Deduction claim form from www.healthsuper.com.au/forms.htm and return it to Health Super. Contact your tax adviser or the ATO on 13 10 20 for more information.

choice of superannuation fund

which superannuation funds can I choose?

If you are eligible to choose, you can select any complying superannuation fund or RSA. The only requirement is that the superannuation fund or RSA must be willing to accept contributions from your employer. Health Super is a complying superannuation fund and can accept employer superannuation contributions (subject to the contribution rules on page 7 - 8).

how do you make a choice?

If you wish to choose the Health Super Fund as your superannuation fund, Health Super can provide you with all the necessary information you will need to give your employer. For more information call our Customer Relations Team on 1800 33 17 19.

when can you access your superannuation?

To ensure that superannuation savings are used for retirement and other permitted purposes, special rules apply to limit access to your superannuation. These are called preservation rules. Your superannuation benefit will consist of one or more of the following preservation components:

- Preserved amount;
- Restricted non-preserved amount; and
- Unrestricted non-preserved amount.

preserved amounts

All preserved amounts can be paid to you if you meet one of the following conditions of release:

- Permanent retirement from the workforce on reaching your preservation age. Preservation age is determined according to your date of birth as shown in the following table:

Date of Birth	Preservation Age
Before 1 July 1960	55
1 July 1960 – 30 June 1961	56
1 July 1961 – 30 June 1962	57
1 July 1962 – 30 June 1963	58
1 July 1963 – 30 June 1964	59
After 30 June 1964	60

- Termination of employment between the ages 60 to 64 (this does not require you to permanently retire);
- Permanent disability, where Health Super is reasonably satisfied that you are unlikely to be able to work again in a job for which you are reasonably qualified by education, training or experience;
- Reaching age 65 (you can cash your super at any time);
- You terminate employment and your Health Super account balance falls below $200;
- Your death (payable as detailed on page 24);
- Permanent departure from Australia, if you are a temporary resident; and
- Financial hardship, if you receive certain social security payments for a cumulative period of 39 weeks after reaching your preservation age and not working 10 hours a week.

Limited release of preserved amounts can be made in the following circumstances:

- Compassionate grounds, as prescribed under superannuation law; or
- Financial hardship if you are under your preservation age and have been on Government support for a continuous period of at least 26 weeks.

Preserved amounts can also be rolled-over into another complying superannuation fund, RSA, deferred annuity or approved deposit fund.

restricted non-preserved amounts

Restricted non-preserved amounts must remain in a superannuation fund until:

- You meet one of the conditions of release for preserved amounts (see above); or
- You are no longer employed with a Registered Health Super Employer that is making contributions into your Health Super account.

unrestricted non-preserved amounts

Unrestricted non-preserved amounts can be cashed at any time.

transition to retirement pensions

Since 1 July 2005, Government legislation allows some or all of your preserved and/or restricted non-preserved amounts to be paid to you as a non-commutable allocated pension, once you have reached your preservation age regardless of your employment status. Health Super offers a Non-Commutable Allocated Pension product. For more information call us on 1800 33 17 19 or go to our website www.healthsuper.com.au to download a copy of the current Non-Commutable Allocated Pension Product Disclosure Statement. We also recommend that you seek advice from an appropriately qualified adviser.

rolling-over to another fund

You can transfer your Health Super account balance to another superannuation fund at any time. This is known as a "roll-over". If you request the roll-over of your Health Super account balance to another superannuation fund, the roll-over amount will be equal to the value, less fees and charges, of your superannuation account.

Generally, transfers will not be made until all outstanding contributions have been received, or you have provided Health Super with all of the information it requires to process your roll-over request. Transfers will be made as soon as practicable and within 90-days of Health Super receiving your roll-over request.

when must your superannuation be withdrawn?

You must withdraw your Health Super account balance if:

- You were already aged 75 years or older on 1 July 2004 and have not continued to work at least 30 hours a week;
- You turned 75 years of age after 30 June 2004, regardless of how many hours you work.

what happens if you become temporarily disabled?

If you have Income Protection insurance and you become "Totally Disabled" within the meaning of the insurance policy, Health Super will pay you a monthly Income Protection benefit equal to the insurance proceeds, subject always to the terms of the policy. For more information on insured Income Protection benefits, see pages 23 - 32.

when can you withdraw funds from your superannuation account?

The table below outlines the circumstances in which your Health Super account may become payable.

	When does the benefit become payable?	What benefit is payable?
Cash withdrawal request	This is subject to preservation. (See page 9).	Your account balance
Roll-over to another super fund	You can roll-over your funds to another complying superannuation fund at any time. (See page 9).	Your account balance
Reaching your preservation age and still working	You can access some or all of your superannuation as a pre-retirement non-commutable allocated pension, once you have reached your preservation age, regardless of whether you have actually retired.	Your account balance, subject to minimum and maximum annual limits prescribed under superannuation law
Retirement	Upon permanent retirement from the workforce on reaching your preservation age or on reaching age 65.	Your account balance
Death	On death	Account balance and death insured benefit (if applicable). (refer to pages 23 - 32).
Total and Permanent Disablement	On Total and Permanent Disablement	Account balance and Total and Permanent Disablement insured benefit (if applicable) (refer to pages 23 - 32).

what happens if you die?

In the event of your death, Health Super will generally pay your Death benefit to your dependants or the legal personal representative of your estate, as determined by Health Super, having regard to any beneficiaries that you have nominated. Dependants for this purpose include the following:

your spouse

Includes a person of the opposite sex who, although may not legally be married to you, lives with you in a bona-fide domestic relationship as husband or wife.

your children

Including adult children, even if they are not actually supported by you.

any other dependants includes a person who was wholly or partly dependent on you or who had a legal right to look to you for financial support.

If you do not have any Dependants and there is no legal personal representative, Health Super may pay the benefit to a permitted recipient under superannuation law (eg a relative).

anti-detriment payment

Your estate or your beneficiaries may be entitled to a refund of any contributions tax paid on certain superannuation contributions. For more information, please call our Superline on Freecall 1800 33 17 19 or speak to your financial adviser.

nominating a beneficiary

You may nominate a beneficiary to receive your Death benefit. However your nomination is not binding on Health Super. Health Super may take your nomination into account when exercising its discretion under the provisions of the Health Super Trust Deed. To nominate a beneficiary, complete the Nominate my Beneficiaries form on page 49.

IMPORTANT NOTE: In the event of your death, the Member Investment Choice option applicable to your account will automatically switch to the Stopover option. This is to reduce the chance of the value of the account diminishing in the event that investment markets perform poorly and to reduce the chances of negative earnings.

what happens when you leave a registered Health Super employer?

If you resign or leave a Health Super Registered Employer, you remain a member of the Health Super Fund. Fees, preservation and contribution rules applying to your Health Super account remain the same. Your Health Super account will continue to be invested in accordance with your nominated Member Investment Choice option (or the Lifecycle Default Strategy if you have not previously made a choice see page 19).

If you have since started a new job, you can ask your new employer to make SG contributions to your Health Super account.

Your insurance entitlements may change. For further details please refer to page 31.

what happens if Health Super loses touch with you?

If Health Super is not receiving contributions on your behalf and it has written to you once and your mail has been returned, it will notify the ATO that it has been unable to contact you. That is why it's very important to keep Health Super informed of any changes to your contact details.

how is your super taxed?

The Government taxes certain superannuation contributions, the investment earnings applied to your Health Super account and certain withdrawals. The taxation rates and rules may change from time-to-time.

Health Super recommends you consult your tax adviser if you would like more information about how taxes impact on you.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION ABOUT THE TAXATION OF SUPERANNUATION: On 9 May 2006 the Federal Treasurer announced extensive changes to the taxation of superannuation. If the changes are legislated as announced, the taxation of superannuation benefits, in particular, will be significantly reduced from 1 July 2007. There is currently no legislation to cover these changes. If you think you are likely to be affected we recommend that you seek professional advice about the status and impact of the announcements.

The tax information that follows is current as at the date of preparation of this PDS and does not take into account the Governments' proposed changes.

Eligible Termination Payments

An Eligible Termination Payment (ETP) occurs when a lump sum withdrawal is paid from a superannuation fund or where a superannuation pension is converted to a lump sum. How an ETP is taxed depends on the nature of the payment and its component parts, your age and when you receive it.

tax on contributions to a superannuation fund

Contributions you make for which you have received a tax deduction (these are called deductible contributions)	15%

tax on money rolled into or out of a superannuation fund

There is no tax payable when you roll-over money from one Australian superannuation fund to another unless the amount rolled-over contains an untaxed component (e.g. a termination payment direct from an employer or a payment from certain superannuation funds to Government employees). The untaxed component of a rollover amount attracts a tax of 15%. Generally no tax is payable when money is paid from one allocated pension to another.

tax on the investment earnings of the Health Super Fund

Tax is payable on investment earnings of the Health Super Fund. Currently the rate is 15%.

Superannuation Surcharge

The Superannuation Surcharge was a tax paid by higher income earners on certain superannuation contributions and employer-paid ETPs. The Superannuation Surcharge has been abolished for superannuation contributions made after 1 July 2005. Superannuation Surcharge still applies to contributions made in previous financial years and these amounts will continue to be assessed by the ATO.

tax on end benefits

A Reasonable Benefit Limit (RBL) is the maximum amount of superannuation you can receive over a lifetime that can be concessional taxed. If your superannuation benefit is larger than your RBL amount, the excess over your RBL is taxed at the highest marginal rate. The rate depends on whether your superannuation is paid as a pension or as a lump sum. The RBLs for the 2006/07 financial year are set out in the table below:

Type of withdrawal	Amount in account (RBL)
If you get paid as a lump sum	$678,149
If you get paid as a pension	$1,356,291

Some members may be entitled to higher RBLs provided they meet certain criteria and have applied to the ATO and been granted a transitional RBL. To qualify for the larger pension RBL, you must take at least half of your superannuation as a complying pension or annuity. Health Super does not offer annuities.

taxation on money paid out of the Health Super Fund

You may have to pay tax when you receive all or part of your superannuation as a lump sum in cash from your Health Super account. The amount of taxation paid will depend on your personal circumstances, including your age, how long you have been in the fund, and how your benefit is paid.

Any payment from super is known as an Eligible Termination Payment (ETP). The components of an ETP and the associated taxation rates are as follows:

Type of component	Tax Rate
Undeducted component Part of the ETP that relates to contributions made from after-tax salary for which you have not received a tax deduction.	Tax-free
Pre 1 July 1983 component Part of the ETP that relates to your pre 1983 service.	5% is included in your assessable income and is taxed at your marginal rate ¹
Post 30 June 1983 component Part of the ETP that relates to your post 1983 service.	Aged under 55 – taxed at 20% ¹ Aged over 55 – first $135,590 is tax-free, the balance is taxed at 15% ¹
Post June 1994 Invalidity component May apply to part of the ETP if you leave service due to invalidity.	Tax-free
Concessional component Part of the ETP that relates to any redundancy, early retirement scheme or invalidity payment made before 1 July 1994 and rolled-over into the fund.	5% is included in your assessable income and is taxed at your marginal rate ¹
Capital Gains Tax exempt component Part of the ETP that relates to any capital proceeds from the sale of a small business rolled-over into the fund.	Tax-free up to RBL
Excessive component Part of the ETP that exceeds your RBL (this is determined by the ATO).	Top marginal rate – up to 45% ¹

eligible temporary residents departing Australia permanently

From 1 July 2002, if you worked in Australia under an eligible temporary resident's visa and have since permanently departed Australia, you can claim any superannuation you have accumulated in the Health Super Fund. The following withholding tax rates (foreign tax collected by the ATO) will apply:

Type of component	Tax Rate
Undeducted and Post June 1994 Invalidity component(s)	0%
Post 30 June 1983 component	40%
Remainder	30%

tax on death benefits

In the event of your death, your Health Super account balance (including any insured benefit received from the insurer) will be paid to your eligible dependants or your estate. These payments receive favorable tax treatment, depending on who receives the amount and how it is paid.

A lump sum paid to your spouse or other eligible dependant (including a child under age 18 or any other person having an interdependency relationship with you) will be tax-free, for amounts up to the deceased person's pension RBL. Only lump sum payments that exceed the RBL will be included in the recipient's assessable income and taxed at the highest marginal rate (plus Medicare Levy). Lump sum payments (up to the pension RBL) paid to non-dependent children will generally be taxed as ordinary ETPs (see the table on the left).

tax on amounts paid for Total and Permanent Disablement (TPD)

Any lump sum paid in the event of TPD will be taxed as an ordinary ETP payment, having regard to any invalidity component (where applicable) (see the table on the left).

tax on amounts paid as Income Protection

Tax is not deducted from any Income Protection benefits paid. However, the ATO will consider these amounts to be assessable income, which will require you to declare them as taxable income in your annual income tax return. For more information about insured Income Protection benefits, see pages 23 - 32.

fees & other COSTS

a consumer advisory warning did you know?

Small differences in both investment performance and fees and costs can have a substantial impact on your long-term returns.

For example, total annual fees and costs of 2% of your fund balance rather than 1%, could reduce your final return by up to 20% over a 30-year period (for example, reduce it from $100,000 to $80,000). You should consider whether features such as superior investment performance or the provision of better member services justify higher fees and costs. You may be able to negotiate to pay lower contribution fees and management costs where applicable¹. Ask the fund or your financial adviser.

to find out more:

If you would like to find out more, or see the impact of the fees based on your own circumstances, the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC) website (www.fido.asic.gov.au) has a superannuation calculator to help you check out different fee options.

fees and other costs

This document shows fees and other costs you may be charged. These fees and costs may be deducted from your Health Super account, from the returns on your investment or from the assets of the Health Super Fund as a whole. Tax and insurance costs are set out in another part of this document, see pages 11 - 12 and 23 - 32. Fees and costs for particular Member Investment Choice options are set out on page 14. You should read all of the information about fees and costs because it is important to understand their impact on your investment.

² All figures disclosed are inclusive of GST and the estimated impact of reduced input tax credits (where known).

example of annual fees and costs for a balanced Member Investment Choice option

This table gives an example of how the fees and costs in the Medium-Term Growth (Standard) investment option of the Health Super Fund can affect your superannuation investment over a one-year period. You should use this table to compare this product with other superannuation products.

Medium-Term Growth option ¹ Balance of $50,000 with total contributions of $5,000 during year
Contribution fees	nil	For every $5,000 you put in, you will be charged $0
Plus Management costs	Account-Keeping Fee $75.40 p.a. Estimated Investment Managers' Fee $275 p.a. (0.55%) Asset Fee² $50 p.a. (up to 0.10%)	And, for every $50,000 you have in the fund you will be charged up to $325 each year plus $75.40 regardless of your balance. What it costs you will depend on the investment option you choose and the fees you negotiate with the fund or the financial adviser.⁴
Equals Cost of fund		If you had an investment of $50,000 at the beginning of the year and you put in an additional $5,000 during that year, you will be charged fees of up to $400.40³ . What it costs you will depend on the investment option you choose and the fees you negotiate with the fund or the financial adviser.⁴

² The Asset Fee is charged for cost recovery purposes. It was not charged for the 2003/04, 2004/05 and 2005/06 financial years.

³ Additional costs may apply, for example, insurance costs (see pages 29 - 30).

⁴ Health Super's Management costs are not negotiable.

additional explanation of fees and costs important additional information about management costs

1. The Account-Keeping Fee includes amounts payable to administer the Health Super Fund such as staff salaries, audit fees, communication expenses and other trustee expenses. It is deducted from your Health Super account annually in advance on 1 July or the date you joined the Health Super Fund (pro-rata). A rebate will apply if you leave during the year.
2. The Asset Fee is capped at 0.10% and is used strictly as a cost recovery measure when adverse circumstances (such as volatile movements in investment markets) cause the member's Account-Keeping Fee to be insufficient to administer the Health Super Fund. If charged, this fee may be deducted from the Health Super Fund's returns as a whole prior to earnings being declared and therefore may be incurred by all members.
3. The Investment Managers' Fees vary and depend on which Member Investment Choice option the member has chosen. They are deducted annually prior to investment returns being declared by Health Super. The Investment Managers Fees' includes performance fees, custody fees and asset consultants' fees.

Investment managers earn performance fees in the event that they outperform their given benchmark. This generally equates to a percentage of that outperformance, and ranges between 5% - 20%.

estimated investment managers' fees

The following table sets out the Investment Managers' Fees that apply to each Member Investment Choice option as at 30 June 2006.

	Standard options	Socially Responsible options
Long-Term Growth	0.66% (on a $50,000 account it is $330 p.a.)	0.93% (on a $50,000 account it is $465 p.a.)
Medium-Term Growth	0.55% (on a $50,000 account it is $275 p.a.)	0.76% (on a $50,000 account it is $380 p.a.)

Short-Term Conservative	0.42% (on a $50,000 account it is $210 p.a.)	0.47% (on a $50,000 account it is $235 p.a.)
Stopover	0.15% (on a $50,000 account it is $75 p.a.)	N/A increases or alteration to the fees insurance costs¹

Health Super reserves the right to change any of the fees or charges used to calculate Management Costs, but only after giving you at least 30 days notice in writing in the instance of an increase.

Health Super's Investment Managers also reserve the right to alter any of their fees. Health Super will notify you of any changes as required. Changes in Investment Managers' Fees will be communicated via www.healthsuper.com.au. Up to date information about Health Super's Investment Managers can be found at www.healthsuper.com.au.

transaction costs

Transactional costs such as brokerage, government taxes/duties/levies, bank charges and account transaction charges such as buy/sell spreads are paid from each Member Investment Choice option before returns are declared. These costs are additional to the fees and costs shown in the table on page 13.

other fees

Health Super charges no contributions fees, establishment fees, Member Investment Choice switching fees, termination fees, withdrawal fees or incidental fees (such as a cheque dishonour fee).

There may be a one-off fee for superannuation accounts in accordance with Family Law requirements. As of 1 July 2006, Health Super charges a $100 (no GST payable) fee for responding to Family Law Form 6 & Superannuation Information Requests from Health Super members and $110 (inc GST) for requests from non-Health Super members. A further fee of $100 (no GST payable) for Health Super members or $110 (inc GST) for non-Health Super members is charged to effect a Family law superannuation account split or flag. Where applicable, these fees are not deducted from members' Health Super accounts and must be paid directly by the member or non-member spouse to Health Super.

member protection

Generally, if at any time your Health Super account balance is less than $1000 and it includes or has included SG or Award contributions from your employer, Government regulations limit the amount of fees that can be deducted from your account.

This ensures that Health Super's Account-Keeping Fee does not exceed the investment earnings credited to your Health Super account.

Other fees and costs (for example, Investment Managers' Fees) can still be deducted from investment earnings before they are applied to your account. In addition, insurance costs and Government taxes can also be deducted.

The insurance premium you pay is dependent on the amount of automatic cover provided to you, any additional cover you choose which is accepted by the insurer and your personal circumstances. The insurance premium will be deducted from your superannuation account annually in advance on 1 July or the date you join Health Super (pro-rata to 30 June).

For more information regarding insurance premiums please refer to pages 29 - 30.

¹ Insurance premiums are deducted from your Health Super account. Health Super receives a 1% discount on the total insurance premium that it pays to AIG Life. This amount forms part of the assets of the fund for the purpose of allocating investment returns to members and is, in this way, retained in the fund for the benefit of members.

taxation

tax deductibility of management costs and insurance premiums

Under current legislation, Health Super is able to claim a tax deduction (currently at the rate of 15%) for administration expenses and certain insurance premiums. The deductions are passed on to members of the Health Super Fund at the end of each financial year directly back to your Health Super account.

For more information about taxation, see pages 11 - 12.

member investment CHOICE

four facts about investing

1. Investments may be volatile, and returns can go up and down.
2. Past performance is not a reliable indicator of future performance.
3. Investment returns are not guaranteed by Health Super or any Investment Manager and you may get back less than the amount that you have invested because of the level of returns (including negative returns), taxes, fees and costs. Investment returns are subject to change over time and will be reported regularly. See www.healthsuper.com.au
4. Investment Managers may change from time to time. Please refer to www.healthsuper.com.au for changes to Investment Managers and current investment returns.

what are the available investment choices?

When you join the Health Super Fund, you can choose from nine Member Investment Choice options; five 'Standard' Member Investment Choice options (referred to as Standard options) and four 'Socially Responsible' Member Investment Choice options (referred to as SRI options) as follows (in table on right).

Standard options	Socially Responsible Investment (SRI) options
Long-Term Growth	Long-Term Growth SRI
Medium-Term Growth	Medium-Term Growth SRI Balanced	Balanced SRI
Short-Term Conservative	Short-Term Conservative SRI
Stopover	N/A

Standard Options

Health Super invests to maximise investment returns (for a given level of risk) by diversifying its investments across a range of assets, asset classes, managers and industry sectors.

Socially Responsible Investment (SRI) options

Health Super still invests to maximise your returns (for a given level of risk), but selects companies based on various labour standards or environmental, social or ethical considerations. These considerations are taken into account by Health Super and its Investment Managers in the selection, retention and realisation of the investments. For more information about this, see pages 18 and 20.

investment objectives of Health Super's Member Investment Choice options

The investment objectives of each Member Investment Choice option is set out in the table below. Please note that the investment objectives relating to the Standard options and SRI options are the same.

	Long-Term Growth	Medium-Term Growth	Balanced	Short-Term Conservative	Stopover
Risk level	High	High/Medium	Medium	Medium/Low	Low
Investment Objective¹	Aim to achieve a return that exceeds inflation by 5% pa measured over rolling 5-year periods.	Aim to achieve a return that exceeds inflation by 4% pa measured over rolling 5-year periods.	Aim to achieve a return that exceeds inflation by 3.5% pa measured over rolling 5-year periods.	Aim to achieve a return that exceeds inflation by 2.5% pa measured over rolling 3-year periods.	Aim to achieve a return that exceeds inflation by 1% pa measured over rolling 3-year periods.
Probability of negative return	1 year in 4	1 year in 5	1 year in 7	1 year in 12	NIL
Investment period	7 years or more	5 years or more	5 years or more	3 years or more	Up to 3 years
SRI option available	YES	YES	YES	YES	NO

asset allocation of Health Super's Member Investment Choice options as at 30 June 2006

Effective 1 January 2007, Health Super will be introducing asset class ranges (currently asset classes are fixed in each of the Member Investment Choice Options). The introduction of asset class ranges within each Member Investment Choice option will provide greater flexibility to each investment structure and will allow Health Super to invest in new markets and access opportunities in a more timely and efficient manner.

The proposed asset class ranges are shown in the table below:

Asset Class	Long-Term Growth %	Medium-Term Growth %	Balanced %	Short-Term Conservative %
Australian Equity	25-40	20-30	10-20	5-15
International Equity	25-40	20-30	10-20	5-15
Property	5-20	5-15	5-15	0-10
Alternatives	5-20	5-15	0-10	0-10
Bonds	0-15	15-40	35-55	45-65
Cash	0-5	0-5	0-5	5-15

what are the main asset classes?

cash

Cash generally refers to investments in bank bills and similar securities that have a short investment timeframe, i.e. typically less than one year.

Cash investments generally provide a stable return, with very low potential for capital loss.

fixed interest

Fixed interest securities (also known as bonds), can be thought of as loans. You pay cash for the bond and in return you receive regular interest payments from the bond issuer for an agreed period of time. The value of the bond can fluctuate based on interest rates and investor sentiment. When the bond matures, the loan principal is repaid in cash. Historically, bonds have provided a less volatile investment than share markets due to their stable interest payment.

property

Property generally involves investing through an unlisted trust or a listed trust. Each trust holds real property investments in sectors such as commercial, industrial and retail. Listed property trusts are generally quoted on a stock exchange and are bought and sold like shares. Historically, property investments have been less volatile than shares.

shares

Shares represent part ownership of a company and are generally bought and sold on a stock exchange. Shares are generally considered to be more risky than most other asset classes because their price tends to fluctuate more than other asset classes. However, over the longer-term, shares tend to outperform most other asset classes.

alternatives

Alternative investments cover a wide range of assets that can have a higher risk profile to mainstream shares. Alternative investments can experience volatile movements in prices and returns due to higher risk levels. Currently, Health Super's alternative investments only include hedge funds of hedge funds, but may be expanded to include other types of alternative investment in the future.

Over the long-term (a period greater than 5 years), growth assets such as shares and property tend to achieve greater returns than income assets such as cash and fixed interest. It is important to note however, that in the short term (a period less than three years) growth assets may experience greater volatility in returns.

Member Investment Choice investment returns for the 5 years ending 30 June 2006

	2001/2002	2002/2003	2003/2004	2004/2005	2005/2006	5 year compound average

Medium-Term Growth SRI	N/A	N/A	9.16%	10.29%	12.38%	10.60%
Balanced SRI	N/A	N/A	7.09%	9.82%	9.07%	8.66%
Short-Term Conservative SRI	N/A	N/A	5.53%	8.94%	6.00%	6.83%

Past performance is not a reliable indicator of future performance. Returns for SRI options are shown for period of three financial years as these investments only became available through Health Super Fund from 1 July 2003. On this date, we also introduced the Balanced option and reviewed the asset allocation of all options. For all returns, the 5-year compound average is from 1 July 2001 to 30 June 2006. The 3-year compound average is from 1 July 2003 to 30 June 2006. Investment earnings are net earnings after the deduction of relevant fees, costs and taxes. They have been calculated daily and compounded monthly.

how are Member Investment Choice returns calculated?

Investment returns are allocated to your Health Super account at the end of each month, or earlier if you leave the Health Super Fund during a month. The amount allocated is the actual investment return earned during the period that your money was invested in a particular Member Investment Choice option, after deductions for Investment Managers' Fees (and Asset Fees if applicable).

Each month Health Super declares a return (or crediting rate) for each of the Member Investment Choice options. The return declared can be positive or negative depending on investment performance. Health Super allocates earnings to your account based on the monthly-declared rate and daily balance you have invested in an option. If you are paid an amount as a superannuation benefit during a financial year, you will receive investment returns as at the final declared rate for each month and a monthly interim rate (representing the final declared rate for the previous month) for intra-month periods.

Investment earnings allocated to your account will be different to the annual declared rate (as displayed above), as the actual amount credited (or debited) will take into account:

- the timing of contributions;
- whether any benefit payments have been made; and
- any investment switches made during the financial year.

IMPORTANT NOTE: In the event of your death, the Member Investment Choice option applicable to your account will automatically switch to the Stopover option. This is to reduce the chance of the value of the account diminishing in the event that investment markets perform poorly and to reduce the chances of negative earnings.

can you change your Member Investment Choice?

You can switch between Member Investment Choice options up to 12 times a year. Any switch is free of charge. When you make an investment choice, your choice will be effective on the first day of the following month or at the date of your most recent partial payment (where applicable). Information about each of the Member Investment Choice options is set out on pages 16 - 18. To change your Member Investment Choice complete and return the form on page 47.

what happens if you don't make a Member Investment Choice?

When you join the Health Super Fund your superannuation is automatically invested into a Default Member Investment Choice option according to your age (see table below). This is known as the Life Cycle Default Strategy and will appear on your Welcome Letter, periodic Statement and six-monthly Record of Transactions.

If you are	You will be automatically invested in
Under age 50	Long-term Growth
Aged 50 to 59	Medium-term Growth
Aged 60 and over	Balanced

The Lifecycle Default Strategy options were chosen by Health Super's Investment Adviser and researched extensively, taking into account the long-term nature of superannuation. If you are approaching a particular age bracket as described above, Health Super will provide you with advance written notice regarding your Default Member Investment Choice option switch and provide you with the opportunity to make your own active choice.

does Health Super maintain investment reserves?

Whilst Health Super has the power to maintain investment reserves under the Trust Deed, it does not currently have an investment reserving policy. This means that all investment returns earned from each Member Investment Choice option that you are invested in, less relevant fees and costs, and any taxes, are allocated to your Health Super account.

administration reserves

Effective 1 July 2006, Health Super introduced an administration reserving policy to help administer Health Super's administration budget. This means any excess Account-Keeping Fees not used in a reporting period will be maintained in a reserve for use in paying anticipated expenses in following years.

investment managers

Health Super uses a range of specialists to manage the Health Super Fund's assets. These are known as 'Investment Managers' and they manage specific types of investments such as Australian and international shares, property, alternative investments, cash, and fixed interest. Health Super regularly monitors its Investment Managers' performance against set criteria. If the Investment Manager does not meet these criteria, it will be reviewed and ultimately terminated. (see page 20 for information about Investment Managers used for socially responsible options).

SRI option investment managers

If you choose an SRI option, Health Super will swap the standard Australian and overseas shares in your chosen option with shares that meet our criteria for socially responsible investments (see page 17 for each option's asset mix). All other assets will remain the same.

It is important to note that there may be higher levels of risk associated with SRI options, as they tend to be more volatile than some other investments. This risk can be higher because the portfolio is not as well diversified as a mainstream portfolio. There are also fewer Investment Managers utilised than with Health Super's Standard options. For more detailed information, go to www.healthsuper.com.au/sri.htm

Health Super engages Investment Managers who use a screening processes to select shares that are considered suitable for inclusion in Health Super's SRI options. These Investment Managers are used for Australian and/or International shares across all SRI options. The Investment Managers used by Health Super for its SRI options are:

how do SRI investment managers screen shares?

The following section sets out a brief explanation of how each Investment Manager considers sustainability issues as part of the SRI portfolio that it manages on Health Super's behalf. Health Super and its Investment Managers take into account labour standards and/or environmental, social or ethical considerations for the purpose of selecting, retaining or realising investments in SRI options.

Australian shares

Health Super's Investment Manager, Perennial Growth Management, uses a two-stage process for consideration of sustainability factors, firstly screening out those companies in unacceptable industries and secondly rewarding those companies who are regarded as most socially responsible. Unacceptable industries include:

- Tobacco;
- Armaments;
- Loggers of old growth forests;
- Uranium;
- Inhumane animal testing; and
- Gaming.

Positive screening is driven by a focus on the environment, governance and ethics, workplace safety, environmental impact, product quality and stewardship, and regulatory compliance. Independent research is provided by the Sustainable Investment Research Institute, a dedicated researcher of social responsibility in the Australian market place.

International shares

AMP operates a Fund of Fund product, currently employing three underlying Investment Managers. Each underlying Investment Manager must avoid companies operating within sectors with recognised high negative social impact. The underlying Investment Managers must avoid exposure to companies with a material exposure (defined as greater than 10% on key financial measures) to the production or manufacture of tobacco, uranium, armaments, gambling, alcohol or pornography. Where a company owned by an underlying portfolio subsequently falls below acceptable SRI standards and no longer meets negative screening criteria, the underlying Investment Manager must sell the company within six months.

AMP also strives to seek out Investment Managers who identify leaders across industries in their responsible approach in a range of areas including:

- Ethics and Governance considerations including:
 - meeting fundamental Human Rights;
 - articulate and implement a Code of Conduct; and
 - meeting Corporate governance guidelines on board structures and remuneration.
- Labour considerations including Occupational Health and Safety, International Labour Organisation standards, working conditions and exclusion of child labour;
- Social considerations including indigenous relations and community involvement; and
- Environmental considerations including energy, resource use and product stewardship.

Where companies breach any of the guidelines, policies are in place to remove the company from the portfolio.

For more detailed information on the SRI option Investment Managers and the policies for dealing with shares that breach the above criteria, go to www.healthsuper.com.au/sri.htm

understanding RISK

understanding investment risk is the key to successfully managing your superannuation savings

You should carefully consider all risks before making an investment decision. You should also consider your own personal circumstances (including financial and taxation issues). These comments are intended as a guide only and Health Super recommends that you seek professional financial advice.

what is risk and return?

Before you consider changing your Member Investment Choice option, it is important that you understand the risks that can affect your investment.

Risk can be described as the probability that your investment may not meet your expectations due to a rise or fall in value over a given period of time. Return is the change in the value of assets (i.e. what you earn on your investment after fees, costs and taxes are deducted). Returns can be negative.

Health Super's nine Member Investment Choice options invest across different asset classes, carry different levels of risk, and produce different levels of returns over time. Generally speaking, an investment with a higher expected return would exhibit a higher level of risk. The graph below provides an estimate of the risk relative to the expected return for Health Super's nine Member Investment Choice options.

what risks affect your investments?

The main risks that affect your investments are:

general investment risk

All investments carry risks. These may include Government fiscal or monetary policy changes, social and technological changes, changes in the interpretation and application of the law, changes in economic conditions such as interest rates and inflation, global events, local and overseas political events, liquidity risks and timing risks.

market risk

Investment returns are influenced by the performance of the market as a whole. This means that the value of your superannuation account can be affected by movements in the asset classes you choose to invest in.

security specific risk

Within each asset class, individual securities like shares or bonds can be affected by risks that are specific to that security. For example, the value of a company's shares can be influenced by changes in the company's management, its business environment or profitability. These can also impact the company's ability to pay its debts.

currency risk

Investment in global markets gives rise to foreign currency exposure. This means that the value of international investments may be affected by changes in the exchange rate.

derivatives risk

Derivatives are contracts between two parties. They can be used to manage certain risks in investment portfolios, however, they can also increase other risks in the portfolio or expose the portfolio to additional risks, like the possibility that the derivative position is difficult or costly to reverse, that it does not perform as expected or that the parties themselves do not perform their obligations under the contract.

performance risk

Each Member Investment Choice option described in this PDS employs Investment Managers to manage the investments on your behalf. Investment Managers generally try to understand and manage investment risk. There is a risk that an Investment Manager will not perform to expectation, for example because of their particular investment style or due to the loss of key personnel.

All Member Investment Choice options in this PDS are subject to some or all of these risks. However, this list is not all-inclusive.

are there any other risks you should be aware of?

When investing there is the possibility that your investment goals will not be met in that you may receive less than you expect or need. This can happen because of the risks described above. It can also happen if your investment strategy is not aligned with your objectives or if your investments are not adequately diversified.

Seek your own professional advice to understand your current financial situation and retirement goals. It is important to consider your investment objectives and your risk tolerance. Diversifying your investments can help reduce risk and the volatility of returns.

how Health Super manages risk

Health Super cannot eliminate all investment risks. It manages the impact of these risks by carefully adhering to considered investment guidelines. Asset and Investment Manager diversification is employed within each Member Investment Choice option and Health Super's investment portfolio, to help reduce the impact of risk and unexpected short-term movements in returns.

When you invest in any superannuation fund, you rely on the quality of its personnel and systems to manage your superannuation savings. If key personnel leave or administration systems fail, your investment may be adversely affected. Health Super has a Risk Management Plan to help manage this risk for the Health Super Fund.

Health Super's Risk Management Plan is available on request.

about INSURANCE

insurance is a very important part of your financial planning as it helps provide you and your family with financial security if something unexpected were to happen to you.

who provides the insurance?

Insurance benefits are underwritten by AIG Life in accordance with a Group Life Policy (Policy) between Health Super and AIG Life. Health Super reserves the right to replace the Policy and to alter the terms and conditions of the Policy, including the cover and the premiums. If you have any questions about insurance, please call Health Super on 1800 33 17 19. Copies of the Policy are available on request.

types of insurance cover

Health Super offers a range of insurance cover options to suit your needs. These options are:

Type of cover	When the insured benefit is paid
Death only	An insured benefit is paid in the event of your death. If you become terminally ill your insured Death benefit may be paid earlier. This is subject to a maximum cover of $5,000,000. Automatic acceptance limits also apply (see right).
Death and Total and Permanent Disablement (TPD)	An insured benefit is paid in the event of your death or if you become Totally and Permanently Disabled. The cover is subject to a maximum cover of $5,000,000 for Death and $2,000,000 for TPD. Automatic acceptance limits also apply (see right).
Income Protection	A monthly insured benefit may be paid if you are totally disabled due to Sickness or Injury for longer than the 90 day waiting period. This is subject to a maximum of 75% of your pre-disability income (see page 30) or your monthly benefit, whichever is the lower. The maximum monthly benefit is $19,500 per month.

automatic acceptance limits (AALs)

When you join the Health Super Fund as a result of commencing work with a Registered Health Super Employer, you may be automatically insured if you die or become totally and permanently or temporarily disabled.

Eligible members (see page 27) will have their insurance cover accepted automatically up to a specified limit without having to provide any health evidence. This is known as the Automatic Acceptance Limits (AALs).

one automatic unit of Death only or Death and TPD cover

The dollar amount of automatic Death only or Death and TPD cover that one unit provides will depend on your age. To see how much you could be insured for refer to the table on pages 29 - 30.

The cost of the automatic cover is:

Death only cover = $0.63 per unit/per week

Death and TPD cover = $1.05 per unit/per week

two automatic units of Income Protection cover

The dollar amount of automatic Income Protection cover that 2 units provides is $750 per month. This benefit can be paid after 90-days for up to 2-years (refer to page 26 for more information).

The cost of the automatic cover (first 2 units) is:

Income Protection cover = $1.70 per week

Please note: The AALs are subject to change. Members who require cover that exceed the AALs will have to provide satisfactory medical evidence before they are covered for the extra amount. The AALs are not available for members with a Health Super Spouse account.

additional insurance cover greater than the AALs

If you would like additional insurance cover over and above the AALs, you can apply for it by completing the 'insurance application form' on page 51. Any application for additional cover is subject to having a minimum account balance of at least $1,000. Depending upon your age, health and medical history and the amount of insurance cover sought, you may need to provide additional information or undergo medical examinations or tests in order for AIG Life to assess your application for insurance cover. When you apply for, change or renew insurance cover you have a legal duty of disclosure, which means you need to disclose anything that may influence AIG Life's decision to insure you, including on what terms they insure you.

For example, you need to disclose anything (such as a pre-existing condition) that might:

- Increase the risk to be underwritten by the insurer; and
- Increase the cost of covering you under the insurance policy.

AIG Life will generally pay for the cost of any medical examination or test that it requests. However, AIG Life will not pay for any other costs incurred for travelling to and from an appointment or for non-attendance at an arranged appointment.

Once your application has been accepted by AIG Life, Health Super will confirm in writing the amount of cover it has agreed to provide. AIG Life may accept an application for cover or an increase in cover subject to premium loadings and non-standard terms. You will be notified in writing if this is the case.

Death cover

An insured Death benefit may be paid by the insurer in the event of your death. The insured Death benefit will be credited to your Health Super account.

An insured benefit may also be paid in the event that you become terminally ill (known as a Terminal Illness benefit). The Terminal Illness benefit is a pre-payment of your insured Death benefit. To be eligible you will need to provide AIG Life with medical evidence that you are terminally ill and have less than 12 months to live. This payment is only available prior to your 70th birthday.

No insured benefit is payable if you suffer from terminal illness due to intentional self-inflicted injury or infection, or any attempt at suicide within 13 months of cover commencing, recommencing or increasing (in which case, only the increased amount will not be payable). Payment of the insured Terminal Illness benefit is in full discharge of the insured Death benefit.

how much Death cover can you insure yourself for?

To see how much Death cover you can apply for, refer to the table on pages 29 - 30.

Total and Permanent Disablement (TPD) cover

An insured benefit may be paid by the insurer if you become Totally and Permanently Disabled. The amount will be credited to your Health Super account. A TPD payment will only be made to you if you satisfy the relevant condition of release under superannuation law and the payment is permitted under the Health Super Fund's Trust Deed.

The amount that will be paid under the Health Super Fund's Trust Deed will be your Health Super account balance, including the proceeds of your insured TPD benefit.

how much TPD cover can you insure yourself for?

To see how much TPD cover you can apply for, refer to the table on 29 - 30.

what is TPD?

You are Totally and Permanently Disabled if AIG Life is satisfied on medical or other evidence that as a result of injury, sickness or disease you:

- Have not performed any work for an uninterrupted period of at least 6 consecutive months solely due to the same injury, sickness or disease; and
- Are attending, and under the regular care and following the advice of a registered Medical Practitioner and have undergone all reasonable and usual treatment including rehabilitation for the injury, sickness or disease; and
- After consideration of all the medical evidence and other evidence as AIG Life may require, have become incapacitated to such an extent as to render you unlikely ever to be able to engage in your own occupation and any occupation for which you are reasonably suited by education, training and experience.

OR

You have suffered the total and irrecoverable loss of use of:

- Both hands; or
- Both feet; or
- One hand and one foot; or
- The sight of both eyes; or
- One hand and the sight of one eye; or
- One foot and the sight of one eye.

Only one insured benefit is payable if you are determined as being TPD by AIG Life and the amount payable cannot exceed the insured Death benefit.

TPD additional cover while working less than 15 hours per week

If you make a TPD claim and work less than 15 hours per week (averaged over 3 consecutive months prior to the claim), Health Super and AIG Life will make an assessment of your claim against your additional cover (if any) based upon the following definition:

- The Insured Member having been (for a period of 6 consecutive months after the commencement of the injury, sickness or disease) continuously and totally unable to perform at least three of the following activities of daily living, as certified by a registered Medical Practitioner appointed by the insurer, and provided such continued inability is irreversible, as certified by that registered Medical Practitioner.

The activities of daily living are:

bathing

The ability to wash yourself either in the bath or shower or by sponge bath without the standby assistance of another person.

dressing

The ability to put on and take off all garments and medically necessary braces or artificial limbs usually worn, and to fasten and unfasten them, without the standby assistance of another person.

eating

The ability to feed oneself, once food has been prepared and made available, without the standby assistance of another person.

toileting

The ability to get to and from and on and off the toilet, without the standby assistance of another person and ability to manage bowel and bladder functions through the use of protective undergarments or surgical appliances, if appropriate.

The ability to move in and out of a chair without the standby assistance of another person.

Please note: This definition is applied only to a claim against any additional cover where a member is working less than 15 hours per week (averaged over 3 consecutive months prior to the claim). A claim against any automatic cover is subject to the definition on page 24 (under 'what is TPD').

what is the TPD waiting period?

TPD benefits can only be considered and approved by AIG Life once you have been absent from work for a continuous period of 6 months due to an injury, sickness or disease. Notwithstanding this, Health Super may (subject to superannuation legislation) make an early payment of the TPD benefit at its discretion.

Income Protection cover

Income Protection cover provides you with a monthly insured benefit if you are Totally Disabled (as defined below) due to sickness or injury for a period in excess of the 90-day waiting period.

Income Protection also provides you with a monthly insured benefit if you are Partially Disabled (as defined below) for longer than the 90-day waiting period.

Any Income Protection payments will begin to be paid after the 90-day waiting period has ended and will continue while you remain disabled for the benefit payment period.

The benefit payment period is a maximum of two years.

what is the Income Protection waiting period?

No insured benefits are payable during the waiting period, which is 90-days from the date that you are totally disabled. You are permitted to return to work for up to 5 days during the waiting period without re-triggering the 90-day waiting period.

The waiting period begins on the date that you are first examined and certified by a Medical Practitioner as being Totally Disabled and have ceased work (see the definition on the right).

what is the definition of totally disabled?

To claim against your Income Protection insurance for Total Disability you must meet the definition of Total Disability. The definition is different depending on the hours you work. See the definitions below.

if you work less than 15 hours per week (averaged over 3 consecutive months immediately prior to the claim)

You are Totally Disabled if you suffer from a sickness or injury and as a result you are:

- Incapacitated to such an extent as to render you unable to engage in your own occupation or any occupation for which you are reasonably suited by education, training, re-training and experience; and
- Remain under the regular care, attendance and following the advice of a Medical Practitioner in relation to that Sickness or Injury; and if you work 15 hours per week or more (averaged over 3 consecutive months immediately prior to the claim)
- Are not engaged in any occupation, whether paid or unpaid.

You are Totally Disabled if you suffer from a Sickness or Injury and as a result you are:

- Continuously unable to perform your regular occupation;
- Remain under the care, attendance and following the advice of a registered Medical Practitioner in relation to that Sickness or Injury; and what is the definition of partially disabled?
- Are not engaged in any occupation, whether paid or unpaid.

You are Partially Disabled if due to Injury or Sickness you:

- Have been totally disabled for at least 10 out of 14 consecutive days during the waiting period (90-days);
- Are able to perform one or more duties of your regular occupation but are unable to perform all the duties of your regular occupation on a full-time basis;
- Are capable of earning an income from your occupation or another occupation at a monthly rate of less than 75% of your pre-disability income; and
- Are under regular care, attendance and following the advice of a registered Medical Practitioner.

If, immediately following a period of Total Disability, you return to work:

- With the same Registered Health Super Employer;
- With another Registered Health Super Employer on the advice of a registered Medical Practitioner and with Health Super's consent; or
- In some gainful employment and are earning less than you would have been had you not suffered from the disability,

For at least 10 out of 14 consecutive days during the waiting period (90-days), you may be entitled to claim a Partial Disability benefit – this is calculated as a proportion of the monthly Income Protection benefit payable for Total Disability.

how much Income Protection cover can you insure yourself for?

You can insure up to 75% of your monthly gross Pre-Disability income. Each unit of cover you purchase is equivalent to $375 per month. Remember, if you are eligible, you may have automatically received 2 units of Income Protection cover (see page 23).

No. Units	Annual Gross Income	75% of Income per Month
1	$6,000	$375
2	$12,000	$750
3	$18,000	$1,125
4	$24,000	$1,500
5	$30,000	$1,875
10	$60,000	$3,750
20	$120,000	$7,500
30	$180,000	$11,250

As shown in the table above, if you have the automatic 2 units of Income Protection cover you are covered for an insured Income Protection benefit of $750 per month. This is based on an annual gross salary of $12,000 regardless of your actual salary.

If you want cover that provides you with 75% of your actual gross salary per month, you may apply for additional cover. Your cover cannot be greater than 75% of your actual gross Pre-Disability income or $19,500 per month (gross) (which ever is the lesser).

what is the monthly insured benefit?

The monthly insured benefit the insurer will pay if you are Totally Disabled is the lesser of:

- The monthly insured benefit you are currently paying for prior to commencement of your claim; or
- 75% of your monthly Pre-Disability income based on the 12 months immediately preceding your Total Disability as defined in the Policy.

Pre-Disability Income is your average gross monthly income earned over the 12 months before you became Totally Disabled. It also includes regular commissions, regular bonuses, regular overtime and fringe benefits (excluding mandatory superannuation contributions but not excluding salary sacrificed superannuation contributions).

If you directly or indirectly own part or all of a business or professional practice from which you earn a regular income, Pre-Disability Income includes any income that is generated by the business due to your own personal exertion or activities less business expenses. Investment income and mandated super contributions are excluded.

what tax is deducted from monthly insured benefit payments?

Health Super does not deduct tax from any Income Protection benefits paid to you. However, the tax office will consider the payments to be assessable income that will require you to declare these amounts in your annual income tax return.

when the monthly insured benefit may be reduced

If you receive income from one of the following sources while you are receiving Income Protection payments and as a result your combined income exceeds 75% of your Pre-Disability income, your insured benefit payments will be reduced by the amount of that income:

- Workers' Compensation or Motor Accident Compensation;
- Any other payments, statutory or otherwise paid for loss of income
- Any other payments made under disability income type insurance policies; or Any other lump sum payments (other than a TPD benefit under this Policy).

Income benefits commuted to a lump sum will be converted to a monthly amount and applied over a maximum 5-year period.

when do the monthly insured benefit payments end?

AIG Life will pay the monthly insured benefit until the first of the following occurs:

- You are no longer Totally or Partially Disabled;
- The date you are able to resume normal duties;
- The 2-year maximum benefit payment period expires;
- You are assessed as Totally and Permanently Disabled (in which case the insurer will pay a lump sum equal to your insured TPD benefit); or
- Your death.

Whilst Income Protection cover ceases at age 60, if you are eligible to make a claim before your 60th birthday and the claim is accepted by the insurer, a monthly insured benefit will be payable for up to the 2-year maximum payment period (i.e. before you turn 62).

what happens if your disability re-occurs?

If you make a further claim arising from the same or related disability as the first claim, then the further claim will be treated as a:

- Separate claim if it occurred after the date that you returned to work for at least 6 months; or
- Continuation of the original claim, if made within 6 months of ceasing payments from the earlier claim (a waiting period will not apply and the maximum benefit period will be adjusted).

However, a further claim cannot be lodged for the same or related disability if you have been paid a claim for the 2 year maximum benefit period and have not returned to work due to your disability.

what is the date of disablement?

When assessing a claim, Health Super and AIG Life will consider the date of disablement to be the later of the date on which:

- The sickness or injury that was the main cause of your disablement commenced or occurred; or
- You ceased to be at work due to the disability.

when does Death, TPD and Income Protection insurance cover commence?

Your Death, TPD and Income Protection cover commences on the date that you become a Health Super member.

If you choose to take out additional insurance above the AALs, or if you have a Health Super Spouse account and apply for insurance, cover will commence when:

- AIG Life has accepted your application for insurance; and
- You have sufficient account balance to cover the annual insurance premiums.

You will be notified in writing of AIG Life's assessment of your application and, if it is accepted, the date that your additional insurance cover commences.

how much does Death, TPD and Income Protection cover cost?

Insurance premiums depend on the type of cover you choose and the level of cover you require. You can estimate the weekly premium using the premium rate tables on pages 29 - 30.

Death and TPD cover

The cost of your Death and TPD cover is worked out according to a cost per unit, as follows:

- Death only cover = $0.63 per unit/per week
- Death and TPD cover = $1.05 per unit/per week

To calculate the weekly premium applicable to you:

- Find the premium rate applying to you taking into account whether you require Death only or Death and TPD cover; and
- Multiply this rate by the number of units you require taking into account your age and the amount of cover required.

example

Jenny is a 45 year old nurse at the Monash Medical Centre. She has one automatic unit of Death and TPD cover which provides her with $35,200 of Death & TPD insurance. This costs her $1.05 per unit/per week.

Jenny wants to increase to 3 units of cover, which would give her $105,600 of Death and TPD cover. The estimated weekly premium is: $3 \times $1.05 = \3.15 per week.

Income Protection cover

Additional units of cover = per unit cost according to age (see page 30).

To calculate the weekly premium applicable to you:

- Subtract the first 2 units of cover from the total number of units required to determine the additional units required;
- Multiply the additional units required by the unit cost taking into account your age; and
- Add $1.70 (the cost of the first two units) to the cost of any additional units required.

example

Angela is 39 and earns $24,000 a year as a Nurse, and she would like to insure herself for $1,500 a month (which is 75% of her gross salary). That means she will need to insure herself for 4 units of cover. The estimated weekly premium is:

1. $4 \text{ units} - 2 \text{ units} = 2 \text{ additional units}$
2. $2 \text{ additional units} \times \text{age based per unit cost of } $0.64 = $1.28 \text{ per week}$
3. $$1.70 \text{ (cost of first 2 units)} + $1.28 \text{ (cost of additional 2 units)} = \2.98 per week

how are your insurance premiums paid?

Insurance premiums are calculated pro-rata and deducted from your superannuation account annually in advance on 1 July or the date you became a Health Super member. If you leave the Health Super Fund during the year, you will receive a rebate for any insurance premiums relating to the period after your termination of membership. Your insurance premium will change as your age changes.

* Restricted to Death Only cover

Income Protection premium rates

The cost of 2 units of automatic Income Protection cover is $1.70 per week. The cost of any additional units of Income Protection cover are calculated according to the table below:

Cost of 2 units of automatic cover $1.70 per week	+	Cost of additional cover (if any)		=	Total Cost per week
		Your age	Cost per additional unit
		< 40 years	$0.64
		40-44	$1.05
		45-49	$1.46
		50-54	$2.01
		55-59	$2.64

important additional information about insurance

can you change your level and type of insurance?

You can apply to increase your Death, TPD or Income Protection cover at any time by completing the 'Insurance application' and 'Confidential Personal Statement' forms on pages 51-56. You can also cancel or reduce any insurance cover you have (including automatic insurance cover) at any time by completing the 'Insurance reduction/cancellation' form on page 57.

For more information regarding how to change your insurance please refer to the Account Management section on pages 33 - 35.

Before you make the decision to cancel your automatic insurance cover (if any) you should be aware that if you wish to reinstate your insurance cover at a later time, it will then be subject to the completion of a Confidential Personal Statement and any other underwriting conditions as determined by AIG Life. You should seek advice from a financial adviser about your personal insurance needs.

If you have sufficient funds to meet the minimum account balance requirements (ie $1,000), AIG Life will provide interim Death by Accident cover while an application for additional cover is being assessed. The lump sum insured is based on the level of cover applied for (subject to a maximum of $250,000). Cover is provided from the date an application for Death cover is received by AIG Life until the earliest of:

- The date your application is accepted or declined by AIG Life; or
- The date your application is withdrawn; or
- 90 days from the date AIG Life receives your fully completed application form for increased cover.

what if your insurance cover lapses?

Your insurance cover may lapse if your account balance is not sufficient to cover the required premiums. Your insurance cover may be reinstated if you complete a new 'Insurance application' form on page 51 and provide satisfactory health evidence, including any medical examinations or tests required by the insurer. Insurance cover will only recommence when your new application is accepted by AIG Life and cannot be backdated.

what happens if you leave your Registered Health Super employer?

In the event that you terminate your employment with your Registered Health Super Employer on or after 1 July 2006, your insurance entitlements will change as follows:

Death and Total and Permanent Disability (TPD) insurance

Your existing level of Death only or Death and TPD insurance cover will continue automatically without the need to supply any medical evidence. In the event that you do not wish to continue your Death only or Death and TPD cover you may cancel it at any time by completing the 'Insurance reduction/cancellation' form on page 57. The effective date of insurance cover cancellation is the date Health Super receives your request.

If you do cancel your insurance cover, premiums will no longer be deducted from your Health Super account.

Income Protection insurance

Your Income Protection cover ceases on the date you resign or leave your Registered Health Super Employer.

You may at any point be eligible to reapply for Income Protection cover providing you meet the following criteria:

- You are a resident in Australia;
- You are aged 59 or under;
- You have Death and TPD cover; and
- You have an account balance of at least $1,000.

Any application for cover will be subject to AIG Life's normal underwriting conditions.

what if you re-join a Registered Health Super Employer?

If you recommence employment with a Registered Health Super Employer, a new Health Super account will be established for you. You will receive the automatic level of Death and TPD and Income Protection insurance cover (subject to eligibility criteria, see page 27). This will replace any automatic cover granted previously but does not replace any voluntary cover you already hold and have elected to maintain. You may apply in writing to consolidate (or merge) these Health Super accounts into one at any time by writing to Health Super or by completing the 'Merge my account' form available from our website www.healthsuper.com.au.

what happens when I take leave without pay or maternity/paternity leave?

In the event that you are granted leave from employment without pay, maternity or paternity leave, your insurance cover (if any) will continue for up to 12 months (from the time your period of leave commenced) subject to:

- a written agreement from your employer granting you the leave without pay;
- you have a firm return-to-work date agreed from your employer; and
- you are not travelling to a war zone.

making a claim against your insurance

Health Super must be notified in writing as soon as possible after you become aware of any claim or potential claim. A waiting period will apply. You must provide AIG Life with any information it reasonably considers necessary to properly assess the claim. This will be at your expense except that AIG Life will pay for any medical examinations it reasonably requires you to undergo, although it will not pay for your travel costs or any costs incurred for non-attendance for such examinations.

If you are overseas you may also be required to return to Australia at your own expense to enable AIG Life to assess your claim.

In the case of a Terminal Illness benefit claim, both Health Super and AIG Life will make every effort to ensure the claim is processed as expeditiously as possible. In the event that there is a delay, Health Super may pay a member their Health Super account balance (if any) independently from any insured benefit, but only if the member satisfies a condition of release and the payment is permitted by the Trust Deed (see page 9).

If a claim for Death, Terminal Illness or TPD insured benefit is accepted, that insured benefit will be paid into your Health Super account. Any TPD or Terminal illness benefit can only be paid to you if you meet a condition of release as set out under superannuation law and the payment is permitted by the Health Super Fund's Trust Deed (see page 9). If you make a TPD claim, your insured Death cover will be reduced by this amount.

There is a 6-month waiting period for insured TPD benefits and a 90-day waiting period for insured Income Protection benefits. The payment of any insured benefit is subject to the acceptance of your claim by AIG Life.

For further information regarding making a claim, please refer to the 'Account Management' section on pages 33 - 35.

reduction of insured benefits

When an insured Death benefit becomes payable, all other cover ceases. When an insured Terminal Illness benefit becomes payable, payment is in full discharge of any insured Death and/or TPD benefit. If an insured TPD benefit becomes payable, payment is in full discharge of the insured Death benefit and Terminal Illness benefit.

what if you work for an affirmative action employer?

If you work for a Registered Health Super Employer with affirmative action policies in relation to people with HIV/AIDS; and you contracted HIV or AIDS before 1 July 2004; and make a death or disablement claim as a result of having HIV/AIDS, then you will not be covered for Death, TPD or Income Protection cover. If you believe that this affects you, you should notify Health Super immediately and cancel any insurance cover you may have.

If you have a disability (either or both of a physical or intellectual nature) and work for a Sheltered Workshop or in an arrangement similar to a Sheltered Workshop, then you will not be covered for Income Protection. If you believe that this affects you, you should notify Health Super immediately and cancel any Income Protection cover you may have.

These Sheltered Workshop employers include, but are not limited to, the following: Multiple Sclerosis Society of Australia, Council of ACT, AIDS Council of Central Australia, AIDS Council of NSW, AIDS Council of Victoria, Nadrasca Incorporated, Royal Victorian Institute for the Blind, Scope (Victoria), and Yooralla Society of Victoria.

AIG Life provides insurance cover 24 hours a day anywhere in the world, subject to the conditions of cover in the Policy.

If you are seconded overseas for reasons of employment (other than to a war zone) for more than 12 months, then you must write to Health Super in order to negotiate an extension with AIG Life. AIG Life may accept the extension depending on the type and location of your secondment. Otherwise, your Income Protection will cease after 6-months and your Death and TPD cover will cease after 12-months.

This description is only a summary so if you are intending to travel overseas, you should visit our website, contact AIG, or call our Superline on 1800 33 17 19 to see whether you are covered.

insurance policy

The information about insurance is a summary of the significant terms. The payment of an insured benefit is subject to the terms of the relevant insurance policies between Health Super and AIG Life. Health Super will not make any payment greater than the amount actually received from AIG Life. If an insured benefit is payable under a policy, the benefit will be paid to Health Super, credited to your Health Super account and then paid in accordance with superannuation law and the Health Super Trust Deed.

Health Super can, by agreement with AIG Life, vary the contractual arrangements for insurance at any time. You will be notified of any variation that affects you.

super for YOUR SPOUSE benefits of the Health Super Spouse account

As a Health Super member, you have the opportunity to open a Spouse Account for your spouse or partner. You, your spouse or your spouse's employer can make contributions to it.

Spouse contributions can be an easy and convenient way to help your spouse save, particularly if your spouse has taken time out of the workforce to study, raise a family or otherwise contribute to your shared goals. You and your spouse can both benefit from a Spouse Account.

For example:

- There is no establishment fee for opening a Spouse Account.
- No minimum applies to Spouse Account contributions
- Making spouse contributions may be tax-effective for you. If your spouse earns a low income, you may be entitled to claim a rebate (see page 8 for more information).
- Your spouse may qualify for the Government Co-Contributions on their after tax contributions (see page 8 for more information).
- Your spouse may choose to invest their super in one of nine investment options offered by the Fund.
- Your spouse has the option to purchase optional Death only or Death and TPD and Income Protection insurance cover through the Fund.
- Having their own Spouse account means that your spouse is eligible to access some of the other benefits of membership of the Health Super Fund, such as Health Super's Allocated Pension Products. These products are only available to Health Super members. For more information contact us on 1800 33 17 19 for a copy of the Product Disclosure Statement for the pension products.

For advice that takes into account your and your spouse's personal circumstances, we recommend you seek advice from a licensed or authorised financial adviser.

how to open a Spouse account

Opening a Health Super Spouse account is easy. Simply follow these easy steps.

1. You and your spouse should carefully consider this Product Disclosure Statement.
2. When you open a Spouse Account, your spouse will have a number of important choices to make in relation to their super. The Health Super Spouse Decision Checklist on page 37 may help with making these choices.
3. You and your Spouse should both complete the spouse account application form on page 59 of this booklet. On this form your spouse must provide their personal details and nominate whether they wish to open the account with either:
 - a cheque for $200; or
 - a roll-in from another superannuation fund or RSAIf opening the account with a roll-in, your spouse must complete a Combine My Super form located on page 45 and return this form with the Spouse account application.
4. If your spouse wishes to apply for optional Death only or Death and TPD and Income Protection insurance they should complete the Insurance Application and Confidential Personal Statement forms located on pages 51 - 56.
5. Once you and your spouse have completed these forms, please return them to Health Super, along with either a $200 cheque made payable to 'Health Super Fund' or a Combine My Super form.

Your spouse is eligible to join Health Super as a spouse member if:

- You are both Australian residents for taxation purposes
- Your spouse is aged under 65 years of age; and
- Your spouse is a person of the opposite sex who is your husband or wife or, although not legally married to you, lives in a bona-fide domestic relationship as husband or wife but does not include a person who lives separately and apart from you on a permanent basis.

Same sex couples are not eligible under current legislation.

Spouse account decision checklist

Spouse accounts are generally much the same as a normal Health Super account. However, spouses are not automatically covered for insurance.

The Spouse account Decision Checklist can help your spouse make a range of important decisions about their Health Super Spouse Account.

Your spouse's investment choices
Has your spouse made a Member Investment Choice?	Health Super offers nine Member Investment Choices. The Member Investment Choice will apply to both the account balance and future contribution you and/or your spouse make together with any amounts your spouse may roll in to the Fund. In the event that your spouse does not make a Member Investment Choice their superannuation will be invested in accordance with Health Super's Lifecycle Default Strategy (based on your spouse's age). For more information about Health Super Member Investment Choice options and the Lifecycle Default Strategy, see pages 16 - 20.
Your spouse's insurance choices
Has your spouse decided if they wish to purchase optional Death only or Death and TPD and Income Protection cover through Health Super?	A spouse member is entitled to purchase optional Death only or Death and TPD and Income Protection cover through Health Super. For more information about insurance, see pages 23 - 32. Remember, insurance cover is not automatic for Spouse account. Insurance cover is only available upon application to the Health Super Fund's insurer (ALG Life) and satisfaction of the insurer's underwriting requirements.
Your spouse's beneficiary nomination
Has your spouse nominated beneficiaries for their death benefit?	By nominating their beneficiaries, your spouse can assist the Trustee in deciding who should receive their benefit if they die. The nomination, however, is not binding on the Trustee. For more information about nominating a beneficiary, see page 10.

providing your tax file number (TFN)

Health Super can collect your TFN under the Superannuation Industry (Supervision) Act. Whilst it is not an offence not to quote your TFN, if you do not, then tax is payable on your superannuation benefit payments at the highest marginal rate. Also, under proposals recently announced by the government, higher tax rates will be applied to taxable contributions, and the fund will be unable to accept undeducted contributions.

If you provide your TFN to Health Super, we will use it only for legal purposes, which include:

- Finding or identifying your superannuation benefits where other information is insufficient;
- Calculating the appropriate tax on any Eligible Termination Payment (ETP) or pension payment you may be entitled to;
- Providing information to the Commissioner of Taxation; and
- Reporting to the ATO for the purposes of Superannuation Surcharge tax.

Unless you request Health Super not to do so in writing, if you provide your TFN to Health Super, we may provide it to another superannuation fund trustee or Retirement Savings Account provider to whom your benefits are to be rolled-over.

what is the trust deed?

The Health Super Fund is governed by a Trust Deed. This, together with the relevant laws and this PDS, governs our relationship with you and sets out your rights as a member and when we may pay benefits. The Trust Deed may be altered subject to legal restrictions.

You can inspect a copy of the Trust Deed at our head office or you may download it free of charge at www.healthsuper.com.au/trustdeed.htm

The privacy of your personal information is important to Health Super. In accordance with the Privacy Act, Health Super may collect personal information from you, such as your contact details, date of birth, health information and TFN, so that it can:

- Establish and maintain your account;

- Process payments;
- Effect insurance cover;
- Correspond with you by email or letter;
- Keep you informed;
- Conduct research and get views on our services, existing and new products; and
- Generally administer and manage your account.

When appropriate, Health Super may also disclose your personal information to, or collect it from:

- Other service providers;
- Legal and other professional advisers; and
- Any other person or entity permitted by law.

Health Super's Privacy Policy can be viewed at www.healthsuper.com.au/privacy.htm. Should you wish to access the details of your personal information, or raise any concerns you may have about Health Super's handling of your personal information, contact Health Super's Privacy Officer on 1800 33 17 19.

The product offered under this PDS is not subject to a cooling off period unless you are receiving it as an employer intending to become a Registered Health Super Employer. An employer may cancel an initial application within 14 days from the earlier of the day on which Health Super issues confirmations in respect of the employees enrolled under the employer's initial application or the end of the 5th day, after the day on which Health Super first issues superannuation interests to the employees. If an employer cancels its initial application, any contributions paid will be refunded. Within one month of notifying a decision to cancel, the employer must notify Health Super of another superannuation fund to which the employees initially enrolled are to be transferred.

This PDS describes the important features of your Health Super account with the Health Super Fund. If any changes occur after this PDS is published, and those changes are not materially adverse, updated information will be made available on our website at www.healthsuper.com.au. A paper copy of any updated information will be provided on request and without charge by contacting us on 1800 33 17 19.

Also, you may request further information by contacting us at the address on the back cover of this booklet or telephoning 1800 33 17 19. You can also go online to www.healthsuper.com.au. Health Super is obliged to give you further information which is generally available to the public or which might reasonably influence your decision whether to acquire or hold this product. Health Super will provide you with this further information free of charge.

General enquiries are acted upon immediately.

Complaints can be made over the telephone, however, detailed enquiries or complaints are generally required in writing. First, please call Health Super on 1800 33 17 19 and speak to our Manager, Superannuation Services. Health Super will notify you in writing of its decision within 90 days of receiving your complaint.

If Health Super does not respond to your complaint, or if you are dissatisfied with its decision, you may contact the Superannuation Complaints Tribunal (SCT) at:

Superannuation Complaints Tribunal

Locked Mailbag 3060
GPO Melbourne VIC 3001
Telephone on 1300 78 08 08
Fax (03) 8635 5588

The SCT is an independent tribunal established to resolve disputes between superannuation funds and their members. However it only intervenes after internal review of the dispute has failed to resolve the dispute within 90-days. Should you have any queries please do not hesitate to contact our Superline on freecall 1800 33 17 19.

You may also write to the Health Super Benefits Committee for a review of our decision.

family law

Superannuation legislation and the Family Law Act 1975 allow for superannuation benefits, including pensions, to be split in the case of legal separation or divorce. Under this legislation, Health Super may be required to:

- Provide certain information about your Health Super account to certain eligible persons on request without notifying you of the request;
- 'Flag' and/or split your Health Super account in accordance with a superannuation agreement or a Family Court Order.

The legislative requirements for splitting superannuation interests are complex and so effecting a split of your superannuation interest may have significant financial and tax consequences for you. Therefore, it is recommended that you seek professional legal, financial and tax advice if you think these provisions may affect you.

safeguarding your Health Super account

Before you are paid a benefit out of Health Super, or a change is effected to certain personal details on your Health Super account; you are required to provide Certified Identification. For more information, go to www.healthsuper.com.au/publications.htm

use of telephone and fax

Health Super has procedures in place to reduce the risk of fraud, but it cannot guarantee that someone trying to impersonate you will not contact us about your superannuation account and change your personal details or make a withdrawal. Health Super may dispute liability for any losses which happen because it has acted on phone or fax instructions that you have not authorised, but which appear to have been authorised by you.

information received by phone or fax

If the details that Health Super receives in a fax or over the phone do not match the details that it has previously received, then it may not proceed with the request.

Health Super will not process a request if the instructions it receives are incomplete or appear to contain errors. This is to ensure that the transaction it performs is exactly what you were requesting.

If a dispute arises over what information Health Super has received by fax, it will not accept a transmission report from your machine as evidence that it has received the fax. This is because, although your fax machine may have confirmed the fax was sent, Health Super may not have received the complete fax at our end.

Apart from these terms and conditions Health Super may have other requirements for receiving information from you from time to time. You will be notified if this affects you or your request.

use of Health e Super online identity number and password

You must keep your online identity number and password secret. You should not disclose them to anyone or record them in a way which could affect their confidentiality.

If you give someone else permission to use your online identity number and password, you are responsible for any transactions they perform or changes they make to your superannuation account information, or anything that happens because you have given them that permission.

Anyone can access Health e Super if they have a valid online identity number and password. This means that if someone else has your online identity number and password, they can access your superannuation account information and perform transactions, even if you have not authorised them to use your online identity number and password. Health Super is not responsible to you and will not pay for any losses that may happen because it acted on any instructions received through Health e Super which used your online identity number and password, whether or not these instructions were authorised by you.

You must tell Health Super immediately if you think that someone has accessed your superannuation account without your permission or if you think that someone else may know your online identity number or PIN. Health Super will stop access to the superannuation account and issue a new password.

access to Health e Super

You can tell Health Super if you want to permanently stop using Health e Super by sending us an original signed request. Health Super will block access to your superannuation account within 2 business days after it receives that request.

Health Super does not guarantee or warrant that the use of Health e Super will be uninterrupted or error free nor does it warrant that it is suitable for any particular purpose or has any performance, functionality or security features, except what it is legally obliged to provide.

Health Super will make every reasonable effort to ensure that the information that you access through Health e Super is up-to-date and correct.

glossary of TERMS

Additional cover: The Death and/or Total and Permanent Disability (TPD) and Income Protection insurance that is provided to a member by the insurer that is in addition to any automatic cover they have been provided upon joining the Health Super Fund.

Allocated Pension: A pension arrangement where a person has his/her own account and regularly (e.g. monthly) draws down an amount from the account, within certain legislated limits. The pension/annuity continues until death or until the account is exhausted.

Association of Superannuation Funds of Australia (ASFA): Consisting of over 375 constituent superannuation funds, ASFA is a non-profit, non-party political national organisation established to protect, promote and advance the interests of Australia's superannuation funds, their trustees and their members.

Australian Prudential Regulatory Authority (APRA): The Commonwealth agency which is responsible for prudential regulation of banks, life insurance companies, general insurance companies and superannuation funds.

Automatic Acceptance Limit (AAL): The death and/or disability insurance cover which insurance companies provide for an individual without detailed medical evidence, if the person is insured under a group life insurance policy.

Beneficiary: A person for whose benefit assets are being held. Beneficiaries of a superannuation fund are usually the members and their dependants.

Deductible Contributions: Money paid into a superannuation fund, either by an employer or a member, on which a taxation deduction is available. Limits apply to the amount of deductible contributions available in a year.

Dependant: A spouse, child or any other person who is wholly or partly dependant on the member or who had a legal right to look to the member for financial support. Superannuation Legislation defines dependant as the spouse and any child of the member. For superannuation benefits tax purposes a dependant must be under 18 years of age or financially dependent. A child includes a stepchild, an adopted child or one born within or outside marriage. Spouse includes legally married or de facto spouse. From 1 July 2004 a dependent also includes a person who was in an interdependency relationship with the deceased.

Eligible Termination Payment (ETP): Generally composed of lump sum payment from a superannuation fund/RSA or an employer to an employee when he/she ceases employment.

Financial Services Guide (FSG): A document required under Federal Legislation that is given to a retail client when they are provided financial services by a holder of an Australian Financial Services Licence. This document describes the service being provided and who is providing it.

Government Co-Contribution: An Australian Government initiative to assist eligible individuals to save for their retirement. If you are eligible and make personal superannuation contributions, the Government will match your contribution with a co-contribution up to certain limits.

Group Life insurance: Death and/or TPD and Income Protection insurance provided by insurers to large groups of people who are associated in some way (such as the members of superannuation funds), for whom certain assumptions about an average state of health can be made.

International Labour Organisation (ILO): A United Nations specialised agency that establishes and monitors compliance with international standards for human and labour rights.

Investment Managers' Fees: The charge levied by investment managers to invest the assets of a superannuation fund. These are included in "Other Management Costs" (see below).

Management Cost: At Health Super, the management cost is the annual Account-Keeping Fee that is applied directly to your super account for the day-to-day administration of your account plus "Other Management Costs" (see below).

Member Investment Choice: A facility made available to the members of a superannuation fund allowing them to decide the proportion of funds to be allocated between different investment strategies, sectors or managers.

Non-Commutable Allocated Pension: In relation to an annuity or pension, this means it cannot be converted into a lump sum payment (unless specific conditions are met) but must be taken as a series of periodic payments.

Other Management Costs: All other management costs (excluding transactional and operational costs) that are not deducted directly from members' accounts, but instead are deducted from earnings credited to members accounts. Other management costs are calculated by applying a ratio, in accordance with superannuation legislation, for the relevant investment options to the member's average account balance.

Registered Health Super Employer: An employer who agrees to participate in the Health Super Fund by agreeing to pay employer contributions in accordance with an agreement with Health Super and the Health Super Fund's Trust Deed.

Roll-over: Transfer of an eligible termination payment to another superannuation fund or RSA (Retirement Savings Account).

Salary Sacrifice: An arrangement between an employer and an employee which involves the employee giving up a part of his/her pre-tax salary in exchange for having the employer provide an alternative benefit, such as superannuation contributions.

Socially Responsible Investments (SRI): An investment option that invests in companies based on labour standards and/or environmental, social, and/or ethical considerations.

Spouse: A person's legally married husband or wife, or a de facto husband or wife of the opposite sex (where one person lives with another on a genuine domestic basis).

Superannuation Industry (Supervision) (SIS) Act 1993: The Act that prescribes prudential standards for superannuation entities, commencing on 1 July 1994.

Superannuation Industry (Supervision) Regulations: The SIS regulations contain the majority of the detailed requirements which funds must meet in order to comply with the SIS Act.

Undeducted Contributions: A component of an Eligible Termination Payment (ETP) made up of contributions made to a fund or RSA after 30 June 1983, for which no tax deductions were allowable. The undeducted contributions component of an ETP is not taxable, and does not count towards a person's reasonable benefit limit.

confidential

Your Duty of Disclosure: Before you enter into a contract of life insurance with an insurer (AIG Life), you have a duty under the Insurance Contracts Act 1984 to disclose to the insurer every matter that you know, or could reasonably be expected to know, is relevant to the insurer's decision whether to accept the risk of insurance and, if so, on what terms. You have the same duty to disclose those matters to the insurer before you extend, vary or reinstate a contract of insurance.

Non-Disclosure: If you fail to comply with your duty of disclosure and the insurer would not have entered into the contract on any terms if the failure had not occurred, the insurer may avoid the contract within three years of entering into it. If your non-disclosure is fraudulent, the insurer may avoid the contract at any time. An insurer who is entitled to avoid a contract of insurance may, within three years of entering into it, elect not to avoid it but to reduce the sum that you have been insured for in accordance with a formula that takes into account the contribution that would have been payable if you had disclosed all relevant matters to the insurer.

DECLARATION

I declare that the above statements are true and correct (whether written in my hand or not) and that no information material to the insurance has been withheld.

I agree that any personal statements made together with other relevant documents shall form the basis of the proposed contract of insurance with American International Assurance Company (Australia) Limited trading as AIG Life.

I declare that I have read the Privacy Statement set out in this application and I consent to the collection, use and disclosure of my personal and sensitive information in the manner described in that Privacy Statement.

I consent to AIG Life collecting sensitive information, that is, health information about me for the purposes of the performance of this contract.

I agree that cover will not commence until the premium is paid and the proposal is accepted by AIG Life.

I have read the Duty of Disclosure notice and understand what is meant by that notice.

I also understand that my duty of disclosure continues after I have completed this application until AIG Life has accepted the risk.

I understand that AIG Life does not currently send any Direct Marketing materials.

PRIVACY STATEMENT

American International Assurance Company (Australia) Limited ABN 79 004 837 861 trading as AIG Life is required under the National Privacy Principles of the Privacy Amendment (Private Sector) Act 2000 to provide you with the following information.

Purpose of Collection

AIG Life collects personal information about you to:

- a) process your application(s);
- b) administer and manage your policy including claims;
- c) facilitate AIG Life's business operations; and
- d) market AIG Life promotional material. (Please refer to 'Your acknowledgment and consent' below.)

If you do not wish to provide us with all or part of the personal information we request from you, we may not be able to provide you with insurance cover.

Access to Your Information

You are entitled at any time to request access to your personal information held by AIG Life. All requests to access your personal information should be made in writing to the Policy Administration Manager, Level 6, 549 St Kilda Road, Melbourne, Vic. 3004.

You can ask us to update your personal information at any time if it is inaccurate, incomplete or out of date.

In some circumstances, AIG Life may not permit access to your personal information. Circumstances where access may be denied include where access would be unlawful or denying access is authorised by law.

In these cases, AIG Life will provide you with written reasons for denial of access or a refusal to correct personal information.

Disclosure of Information

AIG Life may disclose your personal information to:

- a) another member of the AIG group of companies (whether in Australia or overseas);
- b) your adviser;
- c) AIG Life contractors and third party service providers, eg. medical practitioners and reinsurers;
- d) your employer (for employee superannuation products);
- e) financial institutions you nominate;
- f) mail houses (only for the purposes of sending AIG Life mail) and archive companies.

We will only disclose your personal information to these parties for the primary purpose for which it was collected. In some circumstances AIG Life is entitled to disclose your personal information to third parties without your authorisation, such as law enforcement agencies and government authorities to protect our interests or to report illegal activities.

Any Questions or Concerns

If you have any questions or concerns about your personal information, please write to the Policy Administration Manager, Level 6, 549 St Kilda Road, Melbourne, Vic. 3004.

AIG Life has established an internal dispute resolution process for handling customer complaints about AIG Life's compliance with the National Privacy Principles. This dispute resolution mechanism is designed to be fair and documents AIG Life's complaints handling process. Your complaint will be referred to AIG Life's Internal Disputes Resolution Committee who will resolve your complaint within 45 days of receipt.

Should your complaint not be resolved to your satisfaction by AIG Life's internal dispute resolution process, you may take your complaint to the Privacy Commissioner. The Privacy Commissioner's contact details are: Office of the Federal Privacy Commissioner, GPO Box 5218, Sydney, NSW 1042 or call the Privacy Hotline on 1300 363 992.

Your acknowledgment and consent

Your signature below indicates your consent to such use and disclosures of your personal information as outlined above.

Your signature below indicates that you understand that AIG Life does not currently send any Direct Marketing materials.

before you get our advice who will provide the advice?

Employees of Health Super Pty Ltd provide advice to you about the Health Super Fund, as representatives of Health Super Pty Ltd.

who will be responsible for the advice given to you?

Health Super Pty Ltd is responsible for the advice provided to you and the products it issues. Health Super Pty Ltd is the trustee company which manages and controls the Health Super Fund. Health Super Pty Ltd holds an Australian Financial Services Licence number 246492 under the Corporations Act.

what financial services are available to you?

Health Super Pty Ltd and its representatives provide financial product advice about the Health Super Fund and the group insurance cover available to you as a member of the Fund.

Health Super Pty Ltd only issues superannuation interests in the Health Super Fund. Health Super Pty Ltd does not provide financial product advice about any other superannuation fund or products.

how will you pay for the service?

The cost of providing financial product advice is included in the fees charged for membership of the Health Super Fund. Health Super Pty Ltd does not charge any additional fees or obtain any commissions for the advice provided.

how much commission/fee does your Representative receive?

Your Representative is an employee of Health Super Pty Ltd and gets paid a salary. They do not receive commissions, fees or bonuses for the services provided to you.

do any relationships or associations exist which might influence Health Super in providing you with financial services?

Health Super Pty Ltd may hold arms length investments in other companies, such as banks and insurance companies that issue financial products. Health Super Pty Ltd also owns Health Super Financial Planning Pty Ltd. Other than these, Health Super does not have any relationships or association with any other product issuer or service provider that could be expected to influence it in the provision of financial services.

will you be given advice which is tailored to your personal investment needs and financial circumstances?

No. The financial product advice provided to you is of a general nature. It has been prepared without taking into account your particular financial needs, circumstances or objectives. Therefore, you should assess your own situation before making any decision based on the advice. You may wish to consult another licensed adviser when doing this.

General enquiries are acted upon immediately.

Complaints can be made over the telephone, however, detailed enquiries or complaints are required in writing. First, please call Health Super on 1800 33 17 19 and speak to our Manager, Superannuation Services. Health Super will notify you in writing of its decision within 90 days of receiving your complaint.

If Health Super does not respond to your complaint, or if you are dissatisfied with its decision, you may contact the Superannuation Complaints Tribunal (SCT) at:

Superannuation Complaints Tribunal

Locked Mailbag 3060
GPO Melbourne VIC 3001
Telephone on 1300 78 08 08
Fax (03) 8635 5588

The SCT is an independent tribunal established to resolve disputes between superannuation funds and their members. However it only intervenes after internal review has failed to resolve the dispute within 90-days. Should you have any queries please do not hesitate to contact our Superline on freecall 1800 33 17 19.

You may also write to the Health Super Benefits Committee for a review of our decision.
